STUDENTS TO MOUNT CAMPAIGN

(See story page 12)

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson was informed today that the Canadian Union of Students will mount an organized campaign to get university student names on the electoral lists for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Patrick Kenniff of Montreal and Richard Good of Winnipeg, president and vice-president, respectively of the 135,000 member Canadian Union of Students, informed Mr. Pearson of the drive at a 50-minute meeting in Mr. Pearson's office.

They estimated that between 20,000 and 30,000 university students living in university residences may be affected by Elections Act provisions.

OIL STRIKE

Vancouver Waterfront Sealed Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil workers sealed off a large section of the Vancouver waterfront with pickets today as part of their strike against the British-American Oil Co. Ltd.

Railway and port workers refused to cross the lines. Ferry, barge and railway crews already at work, or able to reach work without crossing the lines, stayed on the job.

Continued picketing would be certain to paralyze the flow of goods by truck and rail.

An official of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCA) said the action was taken because the CPR did not allow picketing Tuesday of a BA distribution plant in Vancouver's south-central Coal Harbor area. The BA plant is located on CPR property leased from the railway.

He said today's pickets would stay around the clock until the union is permitted to return to the BA site or until court injunctions force them away.

RESPECT LINES

Refusing to cross the four picketed entrances were members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRTGW), the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (BRC), the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) and other railway unions.

The strike, mainly over job security, began in the west Tuesday. Also out are men in Saskatoon and at the BA refinery in Clarkson, Ont., where the union claims a lockout occurred six hours prior to their strike deadline.

Union officials here charged Wednesday that the company is hiring strike-breaking drivers in Alberta and secretly repainting 15 BA trucks to remove identification so that they can be used to market BA products in B.C.

Union members at all other B.C. oil company plants have agreed to refuse to load any oil destined for BA outlets.

Wage differences also are an important factor in the dispute. The union has turned down this week's BA offer of 35 cents an hour over 30 months, holding out for 55 cents over two years. Base rate is $2.75 an hour.

About 20 truck drivers and warehousemen are affected by the strike in Victoria.

Conference Ducks Issue Of Viet Nam

OTTAWA (CP)—The 54th inter-parliamentary conference, unable to find any common ground between East and West, decided today against formally declaring itself on the war in Viet Nam.

In a move which surprised some conference sources, the meeting of legislators from 61 nations turned aside a mildly worded draft resolution submitted by France, apparently in the fear it would open the door for a more heated cold war exchange on the issue.

THEY ARE PACKING THEM IN this week at the two women's residences at the University of Victoria. Sheila Thompson, 18, of Penticton, left, and Maureen Jewell, 18, of Cranbrook, both first year education students, take a moment's rest from unpacking their suitcases. They will be among 140 girls who will call the residences home for the next term.

WIRE BRIEFS

Boeing Picketed

SEATTLE (AP)—Work slowed on some vital U.S. space and defence programs today as picket lines were established at Boeing Company installations across the country.

Frontier Closed

Delta Hit By B-52s

Talks Paralyzed

GENEVA (UPI) — Kennedy Round tariff negotiations resumed today with the Common Market paralyzed because of the French boycott of the community. Other participants, led by the United States, were scheduled to introduce offers of reducing tariffs on farm products during the day.

Tracy Critically Ill

Air Crash Kills 27

SAIGON (UPI) — A commercial South Vietnamese DC-3 airliner crashed shortly after take-off from Quang Ngai airport 330 miles northeast of Saigon today, killing all 27 persons aboard including at least one American.

LONDON (CP)—A sharp brake on government spending abroad coupled with a freeze on the size of the national defence budget highlight the Labor administration's five-year national plan unveiled by Economic Minister George Brown today.

Economic aid to poorer countries is to be slowed down. Cautioning Britons that they must restrain their demands for the good things in life for the next year or two, Brown said the first thing the country must do is realize it is deeply in debt to the rest of the world and that it must agree to "big changes" to be able to pay its way by 1970.

By that time, national production must increase by 25 per cent over 1964 achievements, giving Britain an additional $24,000,000,000 in national wealth. This would enable payment of foreign debt and raise living standards.

All of the 25-per-cent increase will be needed, Brown said, "if pay rises are not to be largely cancelled out by higher prices, if we are to take proper care of the old and the sick and

Negotiators went back into conference after a short recess from an all-night session. In calling the late-morning meeting, Theodore W. Kheel, special mediator, said:

"Within the next day a few hours after we resume negotiations... we will reach an agreement. Both sides have a constructive attitude. The area of difference is now better understood."

211,000 LOOKING FOR WORK

Unemployment Dips to 8-Year Low

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment dipped to 211,000 at mid-August and fell below the three-per-cent mark for the first time in eight years, the bureau of statistics and the labor department said today in a joint report.

The unemployment figure, down 33,000 from July and 35,000 below August of last year, represented 2.8 per cent of the bumper labor force of 7,490,000 persons.

It was the lowest percentage of unemployment since mid-summer of 1957. The rate for August, 1964, was 3.4 per cent and a year earlier it was 3.9. In July of this year it stood at 3.3.

The report said the number of people at work increased by 28,000 between July and August, an unusually large advance for this period of the year.

At the same time, 39,000 teen-agers withdrew from the labor force.

BEER UNION PREDICTS LONG, COLD STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The brewery workers' union said today that it is getting set for a long, cold strike against five lower mainland breweries.

Union spokesman Ed Sims told a press conference the union has rented heated, winterized trailers for its pickets.

He said the union has heard nothing from the companies about possible negotiations to end the strike, now well into its fourth week.

Pat O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the federation has promised "substantial" financial support for the strikers.

SINGAPORE THREAT:

'Offer Base To Russia'

SINGAPORE (AP)—Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew threatened today to offer Russia a Singapore military base if the United States takes over the defence of Malaysia.

Lee, in another bitter anti-American outburst, declared: "If the Americans step into the shoes of the British, this place is lost."

He declared he could get the Russians into this newly independent island state "in a minute."

"I could make sure that the U.S. 7th Fleet could not use the Singapore Straits," he added.

The strategic Singapore Straits are the gateway from the Pacific to the Indian Ocean.

Lee made these remarks to reporters during an interview at his official residence.

Lee said he believes Malaysia's leaders are convinced that if the British withdrew from their bases here "the Americans would come in to protect them."

Lee said he is also convinced powerful Malay extremist politicians would try to use American troops to support Malay communal interests against the local ethnic Chinese.

Lee said this is why Singapore now is rejecting any suggestion that the United States might eventually have to assume British defence commitments in Southeast Asia.

He did not say who made the suggestion. There has been no public offer by the United States to take over the defence of Malaysia from Britain.

PERMANENT manned satellite will be placed around the earth before Russia lands a man on the moon. Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Leonov told a special plenary session of the International Astronautical Congress in Athens today.

'RUSSIA ALSO ON MOON BY 1970'

MUNICH (Reuters) — Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov said here today the Soviet Union plans to land a man on the moon in 1970.

Answering questions at a press conference at the international transport exhibition in this West German city, Komarov said the United States aim is a landing in 1970. "We, too, have a program for this time."

Komarov was in charge of the first spaceship with a three-man crew.

U.S. Space Twins Cheered By Greeks

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—U.S. spacemen Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad Jr., arrived today to the cheers of an admiring multitude in this land where the idea of astronautics was born. Tonight they will have a chance to meet Soviet Cosmonauts Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov.

The U.S. space record holders landed at Athens airport with their wives and children at the start of a six-nation goodwill tour.

Makes New Bid To Gain Peace

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI—Indian Prime Minister Shastri said today that UN Secretary-General U Thant had written a fresh appeal to him and Pakistan President Mohammad Ayub Khan to negotiate a peace in their countries' undeclared war.

Thant told reporters in London, en route back to UN headquarters, that his peace mission had not failed.

Asked for the reason for his hopes, he told reporters at London airport: "You will discover this tomorrow when you see my report to the Security Council."

Thant spoke to the reporters before flying to New York to report to the council on his week-long mediation efforts in the India-Pakistan war.

He told reporters it was possible he might make a second peace trip. "I do not rule out this possibility."

Before leaving New Delhi Wednesday, Thant made the new appeal to both Shastri and Ayub to meet and explore ways of ending the war.

In a letter relayed to both leaders Thant offered his own services to help them stop the fighting and said "world leaders are also willing to be available for any conciliatory assistance."

Thant's letter urged a summit conference between Indian and Pakistani leaders and said direct negotiation between the countries was the best way to achieve an "honorable and equitable settlement."

Thant's alternative suggestion for a bilateral meeting followed the apparent failure of his efforts to effect a ceasefire. Thant said the conditions and qualifications that Shastri and Ayub had attached to his ceasefire proposal were beyond his authority to give.

Pakistan is putting a three-point condition for acceptance of a ceasefire. These are: ● Withdrawal of both India and Pakistan from Kashmir.

● An Afro-Asian UN force to police the state.

● A plebiscite within three months to decide the future affiliation of Kashmir, but Ayub has indicated the question is negotiable.

Commenting on these conditions, Shastri told Parliament: India was not putting any "conditions"—but was willing to order an immediate ceasefire, Shastri said.

But there were some "qualifications" to which Shastri attached great importance. He said these qualifications would not hinder an immediate cessation of hostilities.

Shastri presented Parliament today with the correspondence that passed between him and Thant and said he will reply as soon as possible.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Judge M. L. Tyrwhitt-Drake got off the brightest quip of the evening at Wednesday night's annual meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Asked to administer the oath to incoming president Richard Bower and vice-president Courtney Haddock the good judge cleared his throat and said: "I hope you two won't give me as much trouble with this as I've had in the past."

You will remember that it was before Judge Drake that the Langford Dutch couple refused to take the oath of allegiance thus touching off a national incident.

No-one's infallible. That includes reporters. Especially when it comes to cattle and horses.

Take the instance a couple of weeks ago when the Times carried a front page picture of a Calgary man admiring a "steer" at Saanichton fair.

(For those not in the know, a steer happens to be a male of the species... except he doesn't work at it.)

Imagine his dismay when a telephone call two weeks later informed him: "You know that steer—it had a calf yesterday."

What's known as a legitimate beef.

Special message to Allison Robb, Rob Chapple, and their steeds Lady Associate and Sir Flash from a chastened caption writer:

Tuesday we carried your picture in the course of plugging Victoria Horsemen's Club show at Saanichton fair grounds Saturday and Sunday. We got so interested in listing the events, we left your names out. We're sorry.

Now if everybody will please turn back to Tuesday's paper, page 13.

Two sixth grade students at Lincoln Memorial School, Caney, Kansas, U.S.A., are seeking pen pals in Victoria.

Rex Barrett, 505 North Vine, and Lois Branch, 606 East Third, Caney, say they are studying Canada in class this year and would like to get letters from Victoria students.

"We are anxious to know more about life in Canada," says Rex Barrett.

A taut note from the B.C. Automobile Association warns me that "speed blindness" can be costly in fines and accidents.

They define speed blindness as the particular feeling that comes over a man after logging 20 or 30 miles at 70 m.p.h. You know the feeling well, 30 m.p.h. seems like a walking pace after a long stint at high speeds.

Says the BCAA, keep your eye on the speedometer when you swing from freeway to secondary roads. Or better still, stop for a coffee. Gives you time to adjust your reflexes and get used to restricted speeds.

Sounds like good advice to me.

U.K. REPORT

build the new houses, schools, hospitals and roads which we must have."

By freezing defence spending to the 1964 total of $6,000,000, the government would be able to increase outlays on roads, government housing, schools and the national welfare scheme, he suggested.

Brown emphasized that the much-heralded national plan is no compulsory program but rather a guide line which industry, unions and government must follow if the country is to boost its exports, pay its way and become more prosperous.

Essentially, the plan boils down to a call for price and wage restraint and an increase in national productivity.

Unions have already agreed, rather reluctantly, to submit new wage proposals to a central labor organization for study before the demands, involving strike threats, are submitted to management. Nevertheless the government intends to proceed with its plan to ask Parliament for power to review all proposed price and wage increases and to delay the increases until the government's prices and incomes board makes a report. Brown said the administration wouldn't use this power unless it became necessary to resist inflation.

The new five-year plan suggests the rise in imports can be curtailed by producing more of the requirements at home, including machine tools, chemicals and industrial plants.

Escort Ready For Service Oct. 15

HMCs Margaree, a St. Laurent class destroyer escort which has been undergoing a $2,000,000 refit here for the past 15 months, will be recommissioned into the navy Oct. 15.

Captain is Cmdr. Robert C. MacLean, 40, of St. Boniface, Man.

The ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. at HMC Dockyard.

The Margaree will remain in port for several days before starting a three or four week series of post-commissioning trials on the West Coast.

The ship will then sail for Halifax and become attached to the navy's Atlantic Command.

The refit, handled by Victoria Machinery Depot, includes the addition of a hangar and flight deck for an anti-submarine helicopter and installation of sonar which will enable the ship to detect submarines at great depths and in various temperature layers of the sea.

HOME GARDEN

Strange Case Of Missing 3

By HILDA BEASTALL

It is a strange fact that three of the loveliest of blue flowering shrubs are seldom seen in local gardens.

All are root hardy, and since the flowers are freely borne on long branches during summer of the same year, it matters not at all that top growth is sometimes killed back by cold in winter.

Flowering period is August and September, with continuation into October if the weather is mild and the garden sheltered by larger shrubs or trees.

All three shrubs begin with a C, so that the trio should be easily remembered.

Ceanothus is the first to bloom. Although certain members of the genus are native to the Pacific coast, it is the hybrids which make the finer plants in cultivation.

"Gloire de Versailles" will begin blooming in summer, having powder-blue racemes of tiny blossoms. "Henri Desfosse" (sometimes written as de Fosse), blooming now, is a much darker blue.

Caryopteris is native in China and Japan, with aromatic, greyish leaves and clusters of lavender blue little flowers in the axils of the leaves. Extended blue stamens add to the charm of dainty blossoms. Caryopteris clandonensis is the form usually seen, while the cultivar "Heavenly Blue" is darker.

The third of the trio is the tongue-twister, Cerastigma (say it slowly in syllables and it will come out right enough), Willmottianum. The clusters of sky blue flowers at the ends of the branches are wide open, each bloom a half-inch across.

All these fall-blooming shrubs need a sunny, sheltered, well-drained spot in the garden, and a bold display is assured when two or three of a kind are planted in a group.

Any pruning to be done must be attended to during April, just before new growths begin to sprout from low down on the plants. A mulch of well-rotted compost, two inches deep, at the same time, will help to keep the soil from becoming hard and dry, which none of the shrubs will tolerate.

French Trawlers Blockade Ferries

BOULOGNE, France (Reuters) — French trawler skippers Wednesday staged a short-lived blockade of ferry traffic with England in protest against Britain's new fishing limits.

The trawlers planned to bring cross-channel ships to a halt for four hours. But they called off the blockade at Boulogne and Calais harbors after about an hour.

Two-Day Apple Show Scheduled

Have you ever wondered what variety of apple is growing in your garden?

If so, you will have a chance of identifying the variety at the fall show of the Victoria Horticultural Society at the Victoria Curling Rink Friday and Saturday.

An educational display of 30 types of apples—all named—will be on exhibition.

The display is being put on by J. E. Grant, 4877 Wesley Road, well-known garden exhibitor and winner of the Mitchell-Turgoose challenge cup at the Saanichton Fair. It is awarded to the person who receives the highest number of points in the vegetables, fruits and flower sections.

LARGE ENTRY The show will be the biggest in the history of the society. Entries to date total 1,500.

Feature attractions will be a large number of floral arrangements based on the theme "international understanding—Asia and the Orient."

In the lobby there will be a display of Japanese flower arrangements, including a Tokonoma, familiar sight in many Japanese homes.

Tokonoma is a flower arrangement along with a scroll and art object displayed in a recess in a wall.

The chrysanthemum and dahlia displays will be the largest ever.

LARGE NUMBER

There will also be a large number of other late summer flowers, fruits and vegetables. The show will be opened from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday.

identified them as Mrs. Helen Clark Phipps, 75, of Seattle, and her sister, Charlotte Clark, about 65, of Washington, D.C.

Sheriff Arnie Freund said the sisters were on a cruise with Mrs. Phipps' husband, Stephen Phipps, as skipper. Freund said Mr. Phipps reported his wife became ill and went to the yacht cabin. Her sister went below to attend her.

When the Helen III arrived at Coupeville at 11:55 a.m., both women were dead. The sheriff said Mr. Phipps reported the weather was so rough he was unable to leave the wheel long at a time to aid them.

An autopsy was ordered to determine cause of death.

Indictment Shocks A-G

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — A country grand jury indicted a deputy sheriff for manslaughter today in the fatal shooting of a white seminary student from New Hampshire, but the state's attorney-general said he wasn't satisfied and would press for a murder charge.

"I was shocked and amazed that the grand jury did not see fit to return a first degree murder indictment against the accused," 52-year-old Tom Coleman, said Attorney-General Richmond Flowers.

Flowers said if necessary he would relieve Lowndes County authorities of all responsibility in the case and handle it through his own office.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Skies are mostly cloudy and will remain so in the extreme northwest corner of B.C. Elsewhere skies are sunny and no change is forecast. In the very cool mass of air that lies over B.C., overnight temperatures dipped sharply. Lows ranged from near 20 degrees in the central interior to the mid-30s in the southern interior. Some light frost was also reported from sheltered areas along the coast. Frost warnings have been issued for all of southwestern B.C. for tonight although no severe frost is anticipated. Afternoon readings will remain on the cool side with a gradual warming through the weekend.

'DIRECTIONS TO DELIVER DOPE'

Scrawled Note Tied to Rivard

LAREDO, Tex. (CP) — A scrawled French note on a torn scrap of paper provided a focal point of evidence today in the trial of Lucien Rivard and his three Canadian co-defendants on charges of conspiracy in a huge dope-running operation.

And an attractive young mother of four went back into the shadows of protective anonymity after telling a federal jury that fears for herself led her to join her husband's final disastrous expedition to Mexico City and later to withhold information from U.S. authorities.

Mrs. Marie Ida Caron, 33, brought from some unknown spot in the U.S. where she lives while her former husband serves a 10-year penitentiary term, told the border town jury Wednesday:

"I was afraid to let them know the things I knew... I had four children... so I guess that's why I didn't identify them then... I was afraid."

The disjointed words came tumbling out as she identified for the jury a picture of an American—an alleged co-conspirator due to be tried separately—as a man who took delivery of two shipments on which she accompanied husband Joseph Michel Caron, 36, 1 to Connecticut from Montreal in 1963.

'INSISTED' ON TRIP

On the Mexican trip, she said, she was reluctant to go but co-defendant Julien Gagnon had insisted she go along to give the appearance of a honeymoon couple and had said "something might happen" to her and her children if she didn't.

Evidence about the note purported to provide a link between Rivard, 50, alleged key man in a drug ring, and the $33,000,000 - or - more worth of pure heroin Caron was ferrying when he and his wife were stopped by border guards beside the Rio Grande here Oct. 10, 1963.

The message was found on Caron and he has interpreted it—in fragmentary fashion—as directions for his last courier trip. A government handwriting expert Wednesday said it was written by Rivard.

Late in the third day of the Montreals' trial, the handwriting testimony was tendered by the government in an attempt to make the cryptic notation the first piece of physical evidence corroborating Car-ron's claim that Rivard master-minded the shuffling around of huge quantities of heroin from Europe and over this continent.

He has testified that Rivard directed European heroin-importing trips in 1963 by Gagnon—alias Jerry Massey—and defendant Joseph Raymond Jones, following each of which he took loads to Frank Cappola at Bridgeport, Conn. He also has said the fourth defendant, Charles Emile Groleau, took part in payoffs.

GIVES NOTE DETAILS

Caron testified earlier this week the note was given him in Mexico City—as accomplices there loaded up his car—by two unidentified men who had come down from Montreal. It consisted of writing and printing scrawled over what appeared to be a piece of envelope. It was unsigned.

A combination of Caron's partial translation and unofficial interpretation by officials seemed to indicate it gave instructions for him to call someone at nine o'clock Oct. 14 at a number whose last two digits were 72—Caron has said he knew a Rivard number like that.

Across the top of the message was written "Stratford Connecticut"—evidently a reference to Stratford near the delivery point of his former shipments.

Caron was caught here Oct. 10. He was under orders to cross here with crowds during an Oct. 12 Mexican fiesta across the river but beat the date by two days.

At least $30 was stolen in a break-in overnight Tuesday at Pay & Save Service Station, 430 Burnside.

Police said the thief pried the look-off-a-door-and-stole-a-boat-of money kept on the premises.

FURTHER CHARGES?

OTTAWA (CP) — Montreal lawyers John Ahearn and R. J. Patterson have been asked to advise the federal justice department whether further charges should be laid in the Lucien Rivard affair, a department source said Wednesday.

The lawyers were requested "a few days ago" to study the report of Chief Justice Frederic Dorian of the Quebec Superior Court who conducted a public inquiry into allegations of attempted bribery and coercion against ministerial aides.

Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to the immigration minister, has been charged with offering a bribe and obstructing justice in the case.

SLASH POWERS

Vancouver Bid Starts IWA Feud

VANCOUVER (CP) — The big Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) moved Wednesday to slash the contract negotiating powers of its regional executive.

The move continued a running feud between the two factions that flared repeatedly during the first two days of the IWA's convention here.

The Vancouver local proposed that committees organized on an areas basis—rather than the union's executive board—negotiate master contracts with employers.

The resolution was tabled for consideration today. Wednesday's heated debate saw the convention chairman overruled on a decision that the proposal was unconstitutional.

SHOW WISHES

Regional president Jack Moore told the delegates their decision would show whether they want a union with a central authority or one that could go in a dozen different directions at once.

He said the Vancouver local's move "emanated from coastal disenchantment with last year's negotiations," and warned that the proposed setup could result in committee recommendations not in the interest of the whole membership.

Retirement at 65 Sparks Strike Threat

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Port Alberni local of the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) Wednesday threatened strike action over a reported lumber company move to institute compulsory retirement of workers at the age of 65.

John Squire, the Port Alberni delegate, told the IWA convention here: "The first time one of our members gets pushed out of a mill because of age, that operation will be shut down on the spot."

Walter Allen, president of the Island city local said that if companies effect compulsory retirement by unilateral action, "injunctions and Supreme Court writs aren't going to cut any lumber."

They made the comments as the convention approved vigorous opposition to any form of compulsory retirement "until the Canada pension plan provides adequate pensions."

The convention was told that MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. has announced workers who reach 65 next year will be retired after the federal plan begins Jan. 1.

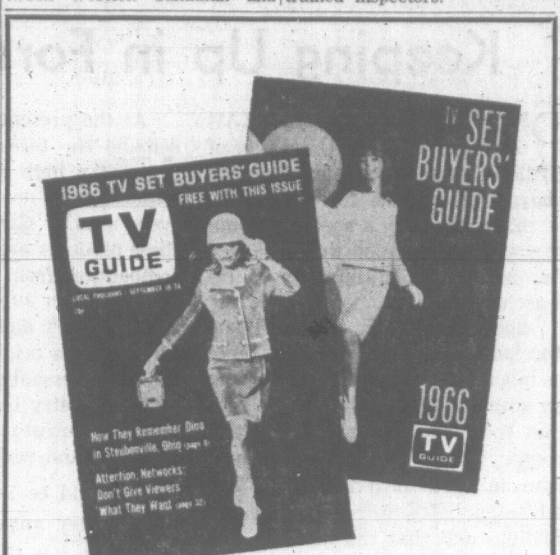

Vancouver local president Syd Thompson condemned the move for "putting men out of work with little benefit from the Canada pension plan and no old age pension."

He estimated it will take 10 years for the full Canada plan benefits to accrue, and said protection for workers nearing 65 will have to become a bargaining point in next year's negotiations with the companies.

Other resolutions passed at the convention called for:

COMPARE PRICES
NO MONEY DOWN

- A negotiated merger of the six unions now representing workers in the woods industries;
- Elimination of independent lumber inspection agencies using mill graders rather than trained inspectors.

Keeping Up in Forestry

DR. JOSEPH GARDNER, DEAN of forestry at the University of British Columbia, made a serious charge against the forest industry of this province in a speech at Duncan when he claimed that it lagged far behind other countries in research.

Specifically, Dr. Gardner said the industry must spend five times as much as it is doing if it is to keep up with the United States. He said that the forestry companies in this country did not have enough trained men in their own ranks to take advantage of government research findings and that the industry was not doing enough to improve its products and create new ones.

This is definitely not the picture of the forestry industry which has been painted by the public relations departments of the various companies involved. Quite the opposite, in fact, and it seems that this matter must be taken further in the interests of the people of this province who are the owners of about 93 per cent of forested lands and who lease them to private interests for exploitation in the best interests of the province.

At the present time, with world demand for forest products of all types at a high level, the need for research may not be evident. However, as Dr. Gardner points out, these products are facing increasing competition from metals and plastics and other substances. With 50 cents of every dollar earned in British Columbia originating in the forests, it is essential that all phases of the industry be kept competitive both with forest products from other countries and with other materials.

It would be interesting to hear the industry answer Dr. Gardner's charge that it is sponsoring insufficient research and in addition to hear the views of provincial and federal forestry officials as well as other experts on this matter.

It seems evident that for some decades at least, the prosperity of British Columbia is going to be heavily dependent on forest resources. We cannot afford to lag behind in any phases of technology or research if we are to remain competitive in world markets which take the bulk of our production.

The Leader and the Led

MR. DIEFENBAKER HAS turned from his fury at Mr. Pearson's calling of a national election to try to rally his party for a united appeal to the voters. He has issued polite invitations to the men who openly opposed his leadership and even tried to dump him a few years ago; he has declared the door is always open to anybody ready to help; he has set unity as the golden virtue of the Conservative organization. Mr. Diefenbaker will, in short, forgive and forget almost any sort of past rebellion if only the rebels will help him to get elected in 1965.

At first, it appeared as though the Conservatives were to fight the campaign on the issue of whether or not there should be a campaign.

Mr. Pearson, said Mr. Diefenbaker, was only calling an election in order to escape facing parliament, where Mr. Diefenbaker presumably would charge him with his shortcomings and vote him out of office — thus precipitating an election.

Such fuzziness in argument is no deterrent to Mr. Diefenbaker. The punchy platform point, the oratorical allegation, the flamboyant flight of rhetoric, the knowing look, the tolerantly contemptuous gesture — these are the Conservative leader's stock in trade. They were highly effective with audiences in his country-wide campaign tour a couple of elections ago. They were his great strength. But his strength proved to be his weakness — for in office he had nothing else.

The Big Little Voices

CANADA'S RECENT PROBLEM of splinter party influence in parliament has a parallel of sorts in Britain's parliament, where the slim Labor Party majority on occasion gives the small Liberal group importance beyond its numbers.

The same situation is sought in West Germany, where national elections next Sunday will test Chancellor Erhard's hold on office and give Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Socialists a chance to gain power. The minor Free Democratic Party led by Erich Mende, has been a consistent supporter of Mr. Erhard's Christian Democrats in the West German parliament. But Mr. Mende is hoping for a close finish which will give him a balance-of-power position. If he is able to attain this — he predicts that 10 per cent of the electorate will vote for his group — he is sworn to oppose the Socialists. Thus Mr. Brandt must win, if he can, by a majority large enough to give him clear control.

The Free Democrats appear to be somewhat of a grab-bag party, containing both former Nazis and anti-Nazis. Perhaps its strongest central plank is free enterprise. But a vital factor faces the group. In order to be represented as a separate party in the West German parliament it must, by law, achieve at least five per cent of the total poll.

A large number of voters are coming to the belief that Mr. Mende's party has outlived its usefulness, that it has become superfluous to the politics of the Bonn republic. Whether there is a strong enough trend in this direction to relegate the Free Democrats to obscurity will be one of the most interesting facets of the coming election. Perhaps no one will watch it with more interest than Mr. Brandt.

Who Is Profiting?

THE SIGHT OF A UNITED States senator charging to the rescue of Canadian consumers is so novel that people must wonder what is behind it all.

The incident occurred when Illinois Democratic Senator Paul Douglas questioned Canadian auto prices under the free trade arrangement negotiated between Canada and the United States. The senator noted at a hearing of the Senate's finance committee into the agreement that abolishing tariffs should bring the Canadian prices down to American levels, a difference of $500 per vehicle on the average.

During the nine months in which the agreement has been in effect, pending its ratification by Congress, it has been the car manufacturers, not the Canadian consumers, who have been pocketing this 17.5 per cent reduction, Sen. Douglas noted.

The senator added that it was somewhat unusual for an American legislator to "take steps to protect consumers in Canada" and, indeed, it is unusual enough to raise the suspicion that other considerations are involved. Among them is the fact that in Senator Douglas's home state of Illinois there are a large number of auto parts manufacturers who are strongly opposed to the free trade plan.

Opposition to the plan is, in fact, mounting in the Senate committee enquiry, mainly on the grounds that the major auto makers are being given a saving of $50 millions a year, which comes partly from the Canadian consumer, in return for investing $240 millions in new plant in Canada. This investment in Canadian plant is seen as being to the detriment of American manufacturers and workers.

Backers of the plan continue hopeful of having it passed by Congress this session, but there are still many obstacles to be cleared.

FROM WASHINGTON

We Must Think About the Unthinkable

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NOT very long ago our attention would have been centred on the news of General Charles de Gaulle's press conference last Thursday, the German elections next Sunday, the coming British financial measures. Today, while the news of these events is still interesting, and even important, they are overshadowed by what is happening in Asia. We can now see that, as compared with the spreading convulsion in Asia, the problems of Europe are manageable, quite thinkable, within the realm of give and take. They do not raise the issues of life and death in a great war.

Lippmann

In Asia, on the other hand, the margin of safety is very thin, there is not even the beginning of a meeting of minds, and a catastrophe is possible.

Our relatively secure Western world extends from Australia and New Zealand through the Americas to the limits of European Russia. Beyond these limits on both sides are the erupting masses of Asia which may threaten Australia and do in the long run challenge Soviet Siberia.

The central drama of our age is how the Western nations and the Asian peoples are to find a tolerable basis of co-existence. Today we do not have even the rudiments of an understanding by which Europeans and Americans, Russians and Chinese, Indians and Pakistanis would be willing to live and let live.

Lesser Disputes

But at least we are in a position to realize that there is no mortal conflict within the Western world. It is, for example, an interesting and important question as to whether the common market should be run by majority vote, as the European federalists desire, or by unanimity, as France insists. But behind this argument in Western continental Europe there is a larger agreement on and prospects of a greater European community extending from Paris and London and Bonn and Rome to Warsaw and Moscow, within which the partition of Germany can eventually be resolved. In this perspective, the outcome of the German elections is not likely to raise decisive issues. The difference between the Christian Democrats, who are ceasing to be intransigent cold warriors, and the Social Democrats, who have ceased to be Marxists, is not of much political importance. Nor is the problem of the revision of NATO in the light of the developments since it was founded nearly 20 years ago. There is no reason to doubt that the Western alliance will survive, and that it will survive in a form which is acceptable to France. For France is the geographic key to a Western defence.

It is important, I think, to play down the differences in the Western world — including our differences with the Soviet Union — because of the transcendent importance and danger of Asian-Western relations.

Testing Legally

Ottawa Citizen

SERIOUS disagreement within the Canadian Bar Association over the issue of breathalyzer tests should serve as a warning to the government to tread warily in this area. The association's council last April proposed that breathalyzer tests be made compulsory, that refusal to take a test be made an offence, as for a motorist to have a blood-alcohol level of .08 per cent or more. (This level is described as the result of four average-sized drinks of Canadian whisky taken by a 160-pound person).

It is now clear that the association council was not speaking for the lawyers' organization as a whole. At the following meeting the council was forced to reconsider the proposal. And rightly so. For as the criminal law section argued, the council's recommendation was dubious on two grounds.

First it denies to the citizen his ancient right to refuse to testify against himself. This right can under no circumstances be undermined for the sake of expediency. If a person can be compelled, on pain of committing a criminal offence, to testify against himself through a breathalyzer test, he could be equally compelled to give evidence against himself when charged other than drunken driving are laid.

This was the essential objection to amendments to the Ontario Police Act, some time ago, which would have forced witnesses to testify during a police investigation, even if they were thereby incriminated. The amendments generated a widespread outcry in the province, and were withdrawn. The same principle should apply to breathalyzer tests.

Basis of Order

The Vietnamese war is a result of an attempt to find a basis of order in Southeast Asia to replace the French imperial system. The horrendous Pakistan-India war marks the crumbling of what the British there were able to leave behind them in the sub-continent. The dissolution of Malaysia is still another case of the breakdown of a replacement for the old imperial system.

It must be evident now that the United States cannot alone with its own resources and its own stock of intelligence and wisdom, provide a replacement for the old system of law and order which has collapsed. The dominoes are falling. America is obviously not the policeman of mankind. The size and complexity and inscrutability of the problems of Asia are great, and they will tempt us to look for some simple "surgical" remedy.

There is no such simple remedy. For we are confronted with what is almost certainly the greatest human upheaval in the history of mankind. We cannot deal with it like a bull rushing at a red flag, our heads down, snorting, with our eyes closed. We shall have to think out a new order of human relationship between the Asian world and the Western world, and that will compel us to think about a lot of things which politicians generally today regard as unthinkable.

FROM SAIGON

The Hidden Viet Cong Redoubts Are No Longer Secure

WHEN SAC's great B-52 bombers began operating from Guam against targets in South Viet Nam, the twaddle merchants at home and not a few misinformation merchants here in Saigon united in a loud, goose-like cackle. The American command was accused of using sledge hammers to kill gnats; there were said to be no gnats to kill anyway, and so on and so on. In fact, however, these B-52 operations, which still continue, are among the most important and most interesting of the war here. They deserve to be better understood.

Alsop

In order to understand the B-52 operations, it is first needful to understand the operations of the Viet Cong.

The Viet Cong are not, and they never have been, the popular movement of lightly armed, indigenous guerrilla fighters, sustained only by high political aspirations, that the twaddle merchants used to describe to us.

Massive Support

Instead, the Communists in Viet Nam have always had massive external support, in the French phase of the war from Communist China and in the present phase, of course, from North Viet Nam. In addition, they have always been sustained by a widespread net of supply bases, training bases, rest camps, hospitals and the like, all located in the mountain and jungle and swamp areas of Viet Nam where they were beyond reach of effective attack until very recently.

From the Camau Peninsula in the extreme south, through the mountainous Do Xa in the centre, to the jungle-clad slopes of the Laos border in the two most northerly provinces, South Viet Nam contains at least eight main areas of super-difficult terrain. All of them have always, hitherto, been virtually immune from any serious penetration by anti-Communist forces.

In these eight main refuge areas, and in some lesser patches of badland so situated that they provide way stations between the main refuge areas, the Communists have built their net of bases of different sorts. They have at least 70 principal bases of the types listed above.

To the American ear, the word "base" by no means conveys an adequate image of these extraordinary installations. Work on many of them began nearly two decades ago. The Viet Cong, among their other talents, are superb diggers and fortifiers. Thus each base rather closely resembles a gigantic fortified ant hill, being a network of tunnels, underground store chambers, deep-dug protecting redoubts, and the like.

For years on end Viet Cong units coming in from operations in the countryside could enter one of these bases with perfect confidence that they would find everything they needed. The slowly accumulated stocks of supplies were — and still are — truly enormous.

In one base briefly penetrated by government forces some months ago, there was a year's supply of rice for an entire regiment. Another base visited more recently by a patrol after a B-52 attack, had contained 200,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, uniforms and cloth to make uniforms for a couple of battalions, and many other useful things as well.

Nowadays, however, neither the

Letters

Universal English

Your Quebec correspondent's letter in your issue Sept. 9 is not very convincing. Indeed my experience is the reverse of his friend's.

I started out in the world by going to France first where I found that I didn't need to speak French if I did not wish to do so and I got along very well. I continued through Belgium, Germany, Poland, Russia, Siberia, Korea, China, where even the names of the railway stations are printed in English as well as Chinese. I have been in all four times around the globe, keeping to the surface. Although I could speak four languages English alone could easily have taken me anywhere. —W. M. Sparke, 3415 Richmond Avenue.

Key Note

While visiting Victoria during the Labor Day weekend I lost my keys in Beacon Hill Park. However, some kind person found the keys and forwarded them to the Tuberculous and Chest Disabled Veterans' Association, whereupon they were returned to me.

I would like to thank this person. He saved me much trouble and worry, and I am very grateful. —Miss M. J. Mackenzie, 5312 Cypress Street, Vancouver, B.C.

Two Languages

The writer of a letter over the pen-name "Language," in your issue of September 10, with reference to the trend toward encouraging Canadians to speak both French and English, asks whether it would not be better to learn one language well before trying to learn two. The implied reason for his concern is the "appallingly bad English" spoken by many children and adults in Canada.

It is my experience, and probably that of many others, that it is easier to learn two languages at the same time than one, provided they are related, such as English and German and French and German adds depth to the understanding of English and is invaluable in developing appreciation of its richness and flexibility.

The reasons for the "appallingly bad English" are in large measure to be found in our appallingly bad educational system. —J. J. Zubick, 4982 William Head Rd.

Rights and Wrongs

On Aug. 30 the Daily Times reported that Andre Rheune complained in court that RCMP Sgt. R. Rogers had taken film out of the (subsequently acquitted) man's camera in such a way as to spoil all the pictures taken. Mr. Rheune protested so strongly that Inspector G. McKay paid for a new film but this cannot replace the lost pictures.

I don't know under what section of Canada's Criminal Code the sergeant might attempt to hide but, he or his superiors who gave him the idea that police may take this type of action unpunished, should be prosecuted just as an ordinary citizen would be. The reprimand promised by the inspector is insufficient.

It is police actions such as this that, when condoned by our governments, aid in creating the growing disrespect for, and suspicion of, the RCMP and other police forces. Here is part of the answer to the question raised a few months ago by the RCMP Commissioner of why there is an increased lack of regard for our public servants who enforce the law.

If this had happened to a Canadian in a foreign country it is probable our government, as well as many of our newspaper editors, would have protested against such injustice. Since the victim was on home ground and being tried on a charge of loitering nothing more than the simple news report was given publicity, making one think that there is a developing attitude that an arrested person's rights don't count quite as much as those of other citizens.

In order to maintain public belief in "justice under the law" we must demand that policemen answer to the same laws as other citizens. Young people, especially, wish to see what they are told is correct action being done by those persons who are supposed to command respect. —Ex-Social Studies Teacher.

Hidden Targets

The great SAC bombers are used, in part, because the bomb squadrons here in Viet Nam are already fully occupied. But the main reason for using B-52s is the nature of these targets, with their buried store chambers and strong fortifications. Only the heavy bombers can damage them seriously, and that is just what the B-52s have been doing, as both photo and ground reconnaissance have shown.

It is a dramatic and remarkable development — this beginning of progressive denial to the Viet Cong of the enormous base-network that has always sustained them until now. Total denial will not be accomplished, to be sure, until the huge supplementary forces now entering this country are everywhere ready to assume the offensive. But at any rate, SAC's sledge-hammers are not being used to kill gnats.

PREFAB TENSION

The only really difficult thing for a cricket commentator on radio is when two fast bowlers with long runs are bowling at the start of an innings and the batsmen are playing maiden over after maiden over. There's no bat play to talk about, no runs to describe, no fielder chasing around the boundary. As the bowler slowly walks back to his 20-yard mark it is then that you thank your lucky stars for the gift of the gab.

—BBC cricket commentator Brian Johnston.

Looking Back

From The Times of Sept. 16, 1890:

Thirty acres of land facing Royal Roads west of Esquimalt have been offered as a site for the proposed university. The site overlooks Juan de Fuca Strait and from a sanitary and scenic stand cannot be excelled anywhere else. The offer was made on behalf of the owners to Mayor Grant, on behalf of the university.

'Muddling Through' Isn't Good Enough

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA—"The only party leader who is making majority government a campaign issue is the Liberals' Lester Pearson. He claims only his party can achieve this objective."

That paragraph is lifted from a column I wrote March 30, 1963. Every word is as true today as it was then, and shows how much this election is a rerun of the campaign of two years ago.

"I'd rather see some other party have a majority than have no party have a majority," Prime Minister Pearson said last week. That's pretty strong. It means "Give me a majority or give John Diefenbaker a majority, but don't elect another minority Liberal government."

Three of the last four elections have produced minority governments. It is difficult to point to any serious or lasting consequences of the intrinsic weaknesses of these governments. We muddled through. But for Mr. Pearson, muddling through isn't good enough for Canada, and in this he is as right as he's ever been.

The nuclear issue of 1963 that cost the Liberals a sweep in Quebec is dead. Mr. Pearson's policy of carrying out Canada's nuclear commitments while seeking alternatives to the distasteful nuclear strike role in NATO's European forces has been accepted by the country, including Quebec.

This is part of the reason why the Liberals look forward to winning at least 60 of Quebec's 75 seats and thus, if they do no more than hold their own elsewhere in the country, end up with a majority. Of course, there are also more pertinent reasons for their Quebec hopes, and they are looking to improve their standings in other parts of the country.

Mr. Pearson is appealing not simply for a majority, but for "a national majority," which he defines as "a majority with representation from every part of Canada." Not necessarily a majority from every region, but at least adequate representation from every region. In the late Commons he most glaringly lacked this representation for the Prairies and the North—only three Liberals among the 40 MPs from those areas.

Even with Prairie prosperity based on Liberal wheat sales to Russia and China, the Liberals will do well to boost their three seats to eight: four in Manitoba, one in Saskatchewan, two in Alberta, and one in the Northwest Territories. The northern affairs district administrator at Hay River, Bud Orange, has been teed up to knock over Gene Rheame in the NWT—just as the Tories picked Rheame from a northern affairs job to win the seat from the Grits in 1963.

But the basic issue is the same as in the last election: which of two men?

Pearson, whose spectacular political pratfalls have detracted from a record of imaginative and important legislation and courageous leadership.

Or Diefenbaker, who is fighting courageously for personal vindication and survival, but haunted by his record in the early sixties of vacillation, procrastination, and anti-Americanism.

Their roles are reversed, which gives Mr. Diefenbaker an advantage: he is most effective when attacking, least so when trying to defend his own record.

But it should be a much less confused campaign than in 1963. At least the voters can judge the men from their records in office, and vote for the one who was the best prime minister.

'Bad Advice Misled Johnson'

WASHINGTON — Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) has characterized U.S. policy in the Dominican crisis as a failure and said the principal reason was "faulty advice given to the president by his representatives in the Dominican Republic at the time."

He said President Johnson, on the basis of the information and counsel he received, could hardly have acted other than he did.

But, he declared, "it is very difficult to understand... why so much unsound advice was given to him."

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, set out his views in a statement Wednesday and incorporated much of this in a later address to the Senate.

The U.S. ambassador in the Dominican Republic when the crisis developed, and still at his post, there, is W. Tapley Bennett Jr., a career diplomat. He became ambassador to Santo Domingo early in 1964.

Fulbright said U.S. policy was marked by "over-timidity" in the beginning and "over-action" in the end of the crisis.

Latins Look to Birth Control As Church Strives to Adjust

CALI, Colombia—The Roman Catholic Church has traditionally been looked upon as dominating the social conduct of Latin America as toweringly as the Andes dominate this continent's geography.

In this city, lying between two ranges of the mighty Andes, the tradition has recently been called into question.

The occasion was the first Pan-American Assembly in Cali's University of the Valley and the Colombian Association of Medical Faculties.

Priests Attended

Among the first to question church dominance were Catholic priests among the more than 70 assembly delegates from 21 American countries.

Clinching evidence was a final recommendation of the four-day assembly in support of birth control. It read:

"In realization of the family planning and sex educational aims of the governments, and in recognition of the high incidence of criminal abortion, and in recognition of the manifest desire of many couples to space their children's births properly, the governments, through their appropriate ministries, should make family planning services accessible to the people who desire them, and educate the people to their availability."

Impossible Before

"These services should provide a sufficient variety of medically approved methods so that they can be chosen in accordance with the dictates of the individual conscience."

Such a public call for contraception would have been unthinkable here as recently as five years ago. Fear of the disapproval of Colombia's conservative church hierarchy would have headed off any idea of holding the assembly here in the first place.

But times are changing, and Latin America's Roman Catholic church is changing with them.

Rev. Gustavo Perez Ramirez, a young Colombian priest, put before the assembly some statistical evidence of the extent to which church teachings are ignored.

● A social survey in Panama showed that 59.3 per cent of married women there who go to church at least once a week use contraceptives. In Rio de Janeiro the figure was 57.9 per cent and in San Jose, Costa Rica, 65.2 per cent.

● Of married women who receive holy communion at least once a month, 55.7 per cent in Caracas, Venezuela, use contraceptives, 39.9 per cent in Bogota, Colombia, and 34.8 per cent in Mexico City.

● A study in a working-class suburb of Santiago de Chile found that among Catholic women 23 of 100 pregnancies are terminated by abortion. Among Protestant women in the same suburb the figure was 13.8 per 100.

Assembly delegates from several Latin American countries suggested it would be unreal to imagine the Catholic Church could veto family planning projects on the continent considering the extent to which the church's teachings are already ignored.

● The medieval serfdom to which many Latin American oligarchs still subject their keynote speech to the assembly. "A priest at the assembly ruefully reckoned that only one substantial group remains in Latin America which has not openly defied the church—the politicians. And their professed respect for the church stemmed not from spiritual illumination but from the non-spiritual belief that priests influence a lot of votes."

The determination of younger elements within the Latin American priesthood that the church shall not lose its influence through remoteness from the modern stream was reflected in the final recommendation of the assembly:

Esteemed Statesman

Perhaps the most striking single development at the conference was the speech of Lleras Camargo, one of Latin America's half-dozen most esteemed statesmen.

Of the population increase which is consuming the region's resources at a rate that leaves Latin America virtually without development capital, he said:

"The human solution, the Christian solution, the economic solution, the political solution is birth control. And the sooner the better."

For a Colombian of Lleras' standing to take public position contrary to that of the church on so sensitive an issue was a shattering departure from tradition.

He was the president who restored democracy to Colombia after the Rojas Pinilla dictatorship and brought comparative peace out of La Violencia.

Lleras spoke of the overpopulation and growing unemployment in rural areas and the mass migrations to shantytowns on the outskirts of cities in the vain search for jobs.

"Latin America's gravest risk lies in this eroded, hopeless fragment of society," he said, adding:

Waves and Waves

"Neither agrarian reform, nor taxes which raise the state's capacity to participate in investments which are the foundation of development, are solutions if waves and waves of human beings, illiterate and half savage, half sick, badly fed, badly clad, badly shod, roofless, continue contributing to the distribution of misery without participating in production and hardly taking part in consumption."

"Already their number is so great and their crowding so tight that they are becoming aware of their capacity for trouble-making."

"Because of this they are followed by international professional agents of revolt, busy salesmen of dogmatic specifics to cure all the ills of despair."

When the Fish Aren't Biting Lift Your Eyes to the Birds

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

The channel waters at slack tide in mid-September have an oily quality not found at other seasons. The relaxed angler gazes over the surface not caring particularly if he locates a school of wandering coho or not; the sea-birds and the small group of porpoises rising off the point provide plenty of interest and require no effort to watch.

Most active are the terns. These exceedingly graceful creatures with narrow, backward-swept wings and forked tails fly with beautiful control, banking and turning with ease or hovering momentarily to eye the trailing lure with short-lived interest. Apart from their characteristic manner of flying, these birds are easily recognized by the black cap on the head.

Dr. Carl

The observer knows that two kinds are likely to be present; the Arctic and the Common tern, but they are so similar in appearance it is most difficult to distinguish them. The task of differentiating the two species is made easier if the birds are seen standing side by side; the Common tern has longer, stouter legs and has a black tip to its orange bill.

In gracefulness of flight the two kinds show no discernable differences. Birds of either species move through the air with purposeful ease that attracts the eye.

At intervals the flow of movement is interrupted by a vertical dive which carries the bird completely below the surface. But before the splash subsides the tern leaps clear and is airborne again usually with a small fish in the bill.

Unlike their cousins the gulls, terns practically never swim. They may rest daintily on kelp or other floating support but otherwise remain on the wing during their active periods.

Without warning a dark gull-like bird appears on the scene and tears off in rapid pursuit of a tern that has just risen from a dive. The smaller bird twists, banks, rolls and dips in evasive flight but the pursuer maintains its position almost on the tern's tail following each change in direction with such precision that the two birds appear locked in flight.

Behavior alone identifies the intruder as one of the jaegers and the long, central tail feathers momentarily silhouetted against a cloud confirm the identification.

The silent, zig-zag flight continues for several hundred yards until, in desperation, the tern is forced to drop its prey. Immediately the pursuer swoops downward and snatches the fish before it has time to reach the water. Its immediate purpose accomplished, the pirate regains altitude and sets off with deliberate wing-beat to search out another victim to rob.

Grating bird-noises from a kelp-bed nearer shore attract the angler's attention; he alters course slightly to trail his gear past the place where a small flock of Bonaparte gulls is feeding. These graceful sea-birds are not much bigger than the terns being left astern but the tail is short and well rounded and they swim a great deal.

Earlier in the season many of these gulls still retained the dark head of the breeding adult but now all that remains of this plumage is a dusky patch on each side of the head.

Bonaparte gulls feed mainly by paddling along the tide-lines and dipping their heads beneath the surface at intervals. Shrimp-like creatures called euphausiids are favorite food, but when young herring and sand-lance are forced to the surface by pursuing salmon these fish are eagerly taken. In the hope that a feeding coho may be the cause of this activity the fisherman swings his attention from the birds to his rod tips but no sign of a strike is noted.

A lone phalarope gyrates on the surface among the bits of debris forming the tide-line. This cocky little bird also occasionally dips for food as it paddles a most erratic course quite unconcerned by the moving boat.

Our common species, the Northern phalarope turns up each fall around southern Vancouver Island, usually in August and September, and sometimes in quite large numbers. They may hang around for a few weeks then drift away presumably southward to some unknown wintering ground.

The porpoises appear again, this time breaking surface in water reddened by the setting sun. The young one keeps close company with a larger one, presumably the mother, the two rising in unison several times in succession before finally disappearing. The angler retrieves his lines and points his craft homeward, fishless but well content.

Norway Desired Change

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

OSLO — Overwhelming desire for a change brought down the Norwegian Labor government this week after nearly 30 years in power.

Socialist rule brought post-war prosperity to Norway. But at the cost of doubling prices over 15 years. For the last five years Norway has had one of Europe's worst price-wage inflationary spells.

Having had a taste of prosperity, people wanted more. The non-socialist parties capitalized on the feeling that people weren't getting a fair shake for high taxes and soaring prices.

Labor's position has steadily eroded since 1945 when they had 87 seats until today they have only 68-12 fewer than the combined opposition.

The Centre party made impressive gains by modernizing its image. It broadened its appeal from the agricultural community to attract middle-of the road voters who had previously gone along with Labor.

The welfare state itself was not under attack. No Norwegians wanted to dismantle the elaborate system of socialized medicine, child allowances, social security and pensions.

But the four-party coalition offered better and more efficient government. They exploited losses in the nationalized steel plants.

'Canada Needs Strong Gov't'

LONDON—British constitutional expert Max Beloff says Quebec's impulse towards autonomy and its accommodation could be the death of both Quebec and Canada.

Beloff, professor of government at Oxford University, concludes after first-hand examination of Canadian developments that the erosion of federal government power threatens both the independence of Canada and the achievement of bilingualism and biculturalism.

"Canada as a whole can preserve a measure of economic and cultural independence only through a strong dominion government with ample powers in all fields," Beloff says.

Quebec, he adds, needs a strong federal government as an ally in persuading other provinces to accept biculturalism.

Beloff took part in the summer

Couchiching conference on federalism conducted by the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs at Geneva Park, Ont. He concludes in the second of two articles in The Daily Telegraph that a strong central government is in the interests of all groups in Canada—French, English, and "new Canadians."

"But to see this need and to implement it will demand a sacrifice of prejudice and a willingness to act in new ways on the part of all three groups," he says.

"For all the tolerance and politeness at Couchiching there was too little evidence that enough of this willingness exists to counterbalance the placid and unreserved assumption of English-Canadians that time and 'business as usual' will do the trick once more."

"Canadian history is the worst of guides to Canada's future."

Beloff rejects as unworkable the proposals for Quebec's future put at Couchiching by French-Canadians — Quebec Education Minister Gerin-Lajoie, Union National Leader Daniel Johnson and federal ministers Maurice Sauve and Guy Favreau.

Johnson's advocacy of the status of an associate state for Quebec and Gerin-Lajoie's promotion of self-determination are incompatible with "any version of federalism," Beloff says.

The support of "partnership with the contention in favor of a special status for Quebec. The French-Canadians cannot expect to be 'masters in their own house' and equal partners outside it."

Beloff says that "the only way of getting the Prairie provinces and British Columbia to accept even the minimum demands of bilingualism and biculturalism is through the strong exercise of dominion powers. They will not do it of their own accord."

"But the whole tendency of Canadian federalism—and in this tendency other provinces have shared the leadership with Quebec — has recently been towards a weakening of the dominion's powers."

"Canada's real problem is now, as it has been ever since Confederation, the preservation of its identity against the magnetic appeal of its great southern neighbor."

"If Quebec secedes the appeal of the United States may become irresistible, Beloff says, and he asks whether even an independent Quebec could resist being submerged in the vast English-speaking territory."

The French-Canadian arguments for economic autonomy "hardly hold water," Beloff says, because Quebec "is too small and too short of capital to go it alone."

The new municipal system is to serve the Gibbins Road-Mary Street area but a bylaw has yet to be put to ratepayers.

City council has a commitment in this respect but the hospital is now under construction on municipal land.

Stake-Out Nabs Man

A police stake-out resulted Wednesday in conviction of a man for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Ronald Frost, York Hotel, pleaded guilty to the offence involving a 14-year-old boy.

Saanich Detective Jack Stone said Frost made indecent advances to the boy and offered him a drink of wine. Police were waiting for Frost when he turned up later for an appointment with the boy.

Det. Stone said that he found a bottle of wine in the trunk of Frost's rented car. He said Frost has admitted a previous conviction of supplying liquor to a minor.

Frost was remanded for a pre-sentence report. He will appear in court again Sept. 23.

Teacher Found Dead

ALBERNI—School teacher Glyndon Wesley Doroschuk, 30, was found dead on the front lawn of his lodgings here Wednesday.

Close to the body was a blood-stained knife which police believe Mr. Doroschuk used to kill himself.

A police spokesman today said foul play is not suspected.

A letter, addressed to the Burnaby man's wife, was found in the bedroom of the Jones Road boarding house.

The letter has been handed to the Alberni coroner.

Mr. Doroschuk's death came only six days after his arrival on Vancouver Island.

He started work at A. W. Neil school on Monday.

His wife and two children had not yet joined him from their former home in North Burnaby.

An inquest or inquiry will be held, depending on results of a post mortem.

The body was found late in the afternoon by Mr. Doroschuk's landlady, Mrs. Janet Bowden.

Three Seek Air Route

NANAIMO (CP)—Three B.C. airlines—Nanaimo Airlines, Pacific Coastal and Airwest—applied Wednesday for a licence to operate a regular Nanaimo-Vancouver air service.

A fourth company, B.C. Airlines, told the air transport board hearing here that the proposed unit fares were not high enough to operate economically.

However, Pacific Coastal said it could provide a daily three-flight service for fares of $7 one way and $10 return.

Live Dynamite Caps Found

NORTH COWICHAN—While working on the municipal dump on Herd Road Wednesday, Herman Mayea picked up a number of live dynamite caps.

Mr. Mayea turned them over to Duncan RCMP who later warned that the caps were dangerous.

The heat of a man's hand could set them off and there was enough fulminate of mercury in them to blow off a man's hand.

ALBERNI—An Alberni man who tried out a car Monday, bought himself a lot of grief.

Rene Van Ingen suffered a number of fractures and internal chest injuries when he crashed the car he was testing.

The car went out of control and rammed a hydro pole about two miles out of town.

The man was alone at the time of the accident. Police say the car is a write-off. They are investigating the cause of the accident.

Mr. Van Ingen was moved to Royal Jubilee Hospital, where officials describe his condition as unchanged.

PORT ALBERNI—An old-age pensioner says he will go to jail rather than pay a $5 parking ticket he blames on a grudge.

Fred Fraser, 70, complained to Port Alberni city council he had been parking in the same manner for six years without so much as a warning.

He said he received the ticket after he had gone over a police constable's head following an argument over another matter.

Mr. Fraser, former administration chief in the Northwest Territories and Yukon for the northern affairs department, said he clashed with the police man over dumping wood chips.

"I keep fit by cutting wood shakes for a friend," Mr. Fraser said.

"I get the wood from an area about three miles from my home, truck it to my yard and cut it up with a power saw."

"I was warned by an RCMP constable that I was not to dump refuse on that spot."
"I tried to explain it came from where it was being dumped, but the constable would not listen."
Mr. Fraser took the chips to police headquarters Sept. 3. A senior constable agreed the only place to dump them was where Mr. Fraser had intended.
By Sept. 3 Mr. Fraser had his parking ticket.
He received it for parking his car facing the wrong way across the street from his home.
He said he found 16 cars including two city of Port Alberni vehicles, parked the same way on a tour of a block-to-block area near his home.
Mayor Les Hammer promised an investigation.

Health Hazard Forecast From Wells

MAPLE BAY — Residents of Maple Bay Road petitioned North Cowichan council Wednesday on the question of getting city water.

The 52 petitioners asked council to suggest ways and means of bringing them city water — and find out the cost.

Reeve Donald Morton said the municipal engineer is working on estimates.

But the reeve told delegation spokesman F. E. Blanc it will be necessary to bring in the whole of Maple Bay to make the extension feasible.

Mr. Blanc said wells in the area are running dry and the water supply from Quamichan Lake "did not improve."

He said in a few years it could constitute a serious health hazard.

In other council news, Reeve Morton disclosed plans to abolish the existing Herd Road garbage dump.

Without naming the site he said council had an estimate of $3,000 for providing an alternative.

Reeve Morton said: "It's expensive but he have no other alternative. The Herd Road dump is an abomination."

Council agreed to make allowance in the revised budget for the $3,000 expenditure.

Chairman Dennis Hogan of the centennial committee gave the news to municipal council Wednesday.

Mr. Hogan said the type of soil found might result in added cost but not much.

A centennial committee and recreation commission meeting has been called for Sept. 30.

Trailer Village Project Scored But Passes 2 Council Readings

NORTH COWICHAN—Municipal council Wednesday rejected the suggestion that a proposed Genoa Bay development would attract a transient population.

Council unanimously gave two readings to a bylaw which will rezone 25 acres at Genoa Bay for commercial use.

A four-man Calgary syndicate plans to construct a marina and mobile home village on the site.

Third and final reading of the bylaw was postponed to a later meeting.

Renewed protests were led by Dr. Robert R. Wilson.

He asked council not to be swayed by the fact the promoters had purchased the property from Capt. Rupert Wainman-Wood.

YOUNGER PEOPLE

Dr. Wilson said a mobile trailer village would attract a transient population — younger people seeking jobs rather than retired couples.

There would be children to be educated and he doubted if the tax revenue from the development would even meet the extra cost of schooling.

Dr. Wilson and Robert D. Howard, a fellow property owner at Genoa Bay, supported the idea of purchasing the property and using it as a public park.

Bruce Devitt described the district as a "jewel" because of its environment and climate. To allow a commercial venture of this type would be sacrilege, he said.

Mr. Devitt, who admitted by letter he was not a municipal taxpayer, said: "The only beauty the promoters can see is in the dollar."

Council received a letter from public health inspector Douglas Roe.

ADEQUATE WATER

He said he shared council's concern regarding adequate water supply and sewage disposal facilities at the development.

No work will be permitted without his final approval.

Mr. Roe said the pollution board would also be involved

BREASTS BARE, NO COMPLAINTS FROM VIEWERS

LONDON (Reuters) — A troupe of bare-breasted tribal women dancers from Sierra Leone were seen by millions of British television viewers Wednesday night and not one person telephoned in to complain.

But the troupe was still barred by the public works ministry from performing naked from the waist up in London's Trafalgar Square.

The African dancers, in London for a Commonwealth arts festival starting today, appeared in a television preview with other Commonwealth dancers.

PHYLLIS DILLER

A housewife who took time out from raising kids to raising laughs, comedienne Phyllis Diller trades quips with MERV GRIFFIN tonight at 10 on Channel 12. Among Merv's other outspoken guests will be Mitsuo Fuchida who commanded the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in 1941, and Frederick Ayer, an expert in counter intelligence who tells the amazing story of a British agent who rose to a high position in Hitler's regime.

"Put a little Merv in your life" and watch the MERV GRIFFIN SHOW every Monday to Friday (10-11 p.m.) on colorful Channel 12.

Nothing such as a log dump could be established without industrial rezoning.

He said the objectors should ask themselves if they could not be more inconvenienced if the area did become public park.

Women Meet

Victoria Presbyterian United Church Women will be holding a two-day conference Sept. 27 and 28 at Ladysmith.

Those desiring billets are asked by organizers to contact Mrs. Chris Jack, 311 Fitzwilliam Street, Nanaimo.

THE GIN THAT WON THE WEST

When Englishmen first came to their Western Canadian ranches their taste for LONDON DRY GIN came with them.

What more natural thing to do here — where fine grain and glacial water produce splendid spirits — than to import botanicals, such as juniper, coriander and other exotic flora, and begin distilling gin in the LONDON DRY tradition?

From this heritage comes RANCHMAN'S — the western gin with the English accent.

Next time, ask for RANCHMAN'S GIN ... in any accent you like.

$2.8 MILLION ORDER TO B.C. TRUCK FIRMS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Forty-one logging trucks, each big enough to carry the timber for two Canadian houses, have been ordered from three Vancouver manufacturers by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

The largest single purchase of logging trucks in the history of the Canadian forest industry will cost $2,800,000. It goes to Hayes Manufacturing Co. Ltd., Canadian Kenworth Ltd., and Pacific Truck and Trailer Ltd.

The trucks have 18 wheels, weigh up to 29 tons, 12 cylinders, and engine delivery up to 480 horsepower.

Foreign Industries Study B.C. Interior

PENTICTON (CP) — Strong interest in secondary manufacturing possibilities in the Okanagan-Similkameen area of the B.C. interior was expressed here Wednesday by Japanese, Formosan and West German consular trade officials.

They were among 350 regional municipal, Chamber of Commerce, private business, government and diplomatic officials attending a day-long industrial development conference.

The conference was called by the federal department of industry to discuss attracting secondary manufacturing plants into this two-valley area under regulations of Ottawa's new cash-grant incentive scheme. Four other "strong" inquiries have been handled since the area was designated last month, said B.C. industrial commissioner Ray Kersey.

He would not disclose details of the inquiries or from what country they came.

WILL MAKE TOUR

G. Innosuke Furuhata, trade commissioner for the Japan external trade organization in Vancouver, said he had no definite information about specific interest of Japanese manufacturing companies in a possible site in this area. But he expected that a party of Vancouver-based Japanese businessmen would visit the Okanagan-Similkameen areas later this month.

Wang Yi-Fei, vice-counsel for Nationalist China in Vancouver, said he would be sending full details on the designated area advantages of the region and the details of the incentive scheme to Taipei immediately after the close of the conference.

Some interest was also expressed by Rolf Fischer, commercial attaché at the German consulate general in Vancouver.

Mr. Kersey told the conference that the B.C. department of industrial development trade and commerce had maintained close liaison with federal department of industry officials in B.C. for the past several months in relation to the Okanagan-Similkameen designation.

New Data Centre Set for Vancouver

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — National Cash Register Co. announced today plans for a $4,000,000 world-wide expansion, including the opening of a new data processing facility in Vancouver, B.C.

The company said its program for the next 12 months calls for establishment of eight new data centres overseas, increased services at six U.S. establishments and the new facility in Canada.

'CONFUSES, MISINFORMS INVESTORS'

Accountant Blasts Forest Giants

VANCOUVER — A Vancouver accountant was sharply critical of his own profession Wednesday and equally critical of two major forest products companies which permit too much flexibility in their accounting methods.

D. C. O'Brien, a partner in Price, Waterhouse and Co., told the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants that such flexibility confused and misinformed investors and made comparisons between financial statements impossible.

Using MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell, River Ltd., and B.C. Forests Products Ltd., as examples, Mr. O'Brien said that had either company used the other's accounting methods their annual financial statements would have been vastly different.

"If MacMillan, Bloedel had used the same accounting income method as B.C. Forest Products in 1964, its reported net earnings would have increased from $41,400,000 to $47,000,000, an increase of approximately 13 per cent," he said.

"If B.C. Forest Products had adopted the same basis as MacMillan, Bloedel, its reported earnings would have dropped from $11,400,000 to $5,700,000, a reduction of 50 per cent.

"Surely this lack of comparison between the earnings of the two companies in the same industry constitutes a most unsatisfactory situation, and must be a source of embarrassment and concern to our profession."

Mr. O'Brien said accepted alternatives for handling an item two different ways should not be allowed.

"The alternatives make comparisons between financial statements impossible, and confuse and misinform investors," he said.

Mr. O'Brien said the way to achieve uniformity of accounting principles is to have the CICA bulletins on procedures as definite and specific as possible, "and not sanction alternative procedures."

Students Can't Get Vote Rules Electoral Officer

There's something special about
SPECIAL OLD

12 oz.

This advertisement is not published or displayed by the Liquor Control Board or by the Government of British Columbia

OTTAWA (CP)—Chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay ruled out Wednesday any possibility of a legal loophole through which otherwise - disfranchised university students could get around the Canada Elections Act and vote in the Nov. 8 federal election.

It was suggested by student representatives in Vancouver and Edmonton this week that deposits placed with universities by students during the summer to reserve accommodation for the fall term might constitute a legal claim to be in residence when the election writs were issued Sept. 8.

ELECTION WRITS

"Placing of deposits for accommodation does not fulfil the requirements of rule 9 section 16 of the Canada Elections Act," Mr. Castonguay said.

Under the rule, students of voting age studying away from home and unable to vote Nov. 8 in what is ordinarily their home constituency must have established residence in another riding by Sept. 8—date the election writs were issued—if they are to get on the voting lists in their university-term constituency.

When the writs were issued for this election most universities had not yet started their terms. This meant many students—their representatives estimate the number at 20,000 to 30,000—were not residing Sept. 8 where they will be Nov. 8.

NO CHANGES NOW

"The rule is explicit," Mr. Castonguay said. "The Canada Elections Act can be amended only by Parliament, which now is dissolved."

The chief electoral officer has received direct representations from the 138,000-member Canadian Union of Students, the Students General Association of Laurentian University at Sudbury and the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia. Some individual students and politicians also have been in touch with him.

The Alma Mater Society of UBC and student officials at the University of Alberta suggested the possibility of the loophole.

EXTREME MEASURES

In some cases, students have urged Mr. Castonguay to devise a solution and have even suggested "extreme measures."

But he is bound by an act he cannot change.

Actually, the away-from-home students Nov. 8 must satisfy three conditions of the act if they are to vote. "They can't just meet one of the three," the chief electoral officer said.

Besides residence, they are expected to establish registration and attendance at university on Sept. 8.

Residence does not necessarily mean a university residence on campus. For example, a Vancouver student studying at the University of Toronto and satisfying all other conditions of the elections act can live in any one of the 18 Toronto-area constituencies, or in a nearby riding. But he must have been there Sept. 8.

'FANTASTIC WASTE OF MONEY'

VANCOUVER (CP)—B.C. Works Minister W. N. Chant said Wednesday the new $31,000,000 Toronto city hall is a fantastic waste of money.

"It's the biggest waste of the taxpayers' money I have ever seen," Mr. Chant said. "Mr. Chant said he visited the new city hall—it was opened Monday by Prime Minister Pearson—on a tour of public buildings across the continent. "It is huge but it is only a shell," Mr. Chant said. "There is no area inside to speak of."

He said the vast glass and concrete surface of the building faces due south and the sun shines directly inside during the day.

"It is difficult to maintain and it has air circulation problems," Mr. Chant said.

Eatons Plan Huge Centre In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—With week-long ceremonies for Toronto's new city hall still under way, plans for continuing downtown redevelopment got what could be a $260,000,000 nudge from the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., Wednesday. John David Eaton, president of the company, outlined a proposed 20-acre centre beside the new city hall that could rival New York's Rockefeller Centre.

The three-block project as outlined would include:

—A department store of 1,300,000 square feet.

—Two two-storey landscaped arcades running for three blocks.

No Questions on Politics—Lesage

Quebec Liberal Premier Jean Lesage will address the University of Victoria Wednesday when he stops in Victoria for a one-day stand in a three-week western tour—but he won't be talking politics.

Premier Lesage will speak in the Gordon Head gymnasium at 9:30 a.m. rather than the previously announced 12:30 p.m. All regular classes will be cancelled and the public will be invited to attend.

His topic will be the future of Quebec in Confederation. Activities co-ordinator Gordon Pollard said Wednesday that a question period may follow, but the premier earlier told news men he would "answer no questions on politics." Mr. Lesage, who prefers to be called "The Prime Minister of Quebec," will speak again Wednesday night to the Union of B.C. Municipalities before he leaves for Vancouver.

Board Needs $1,933,117 For Projects

Greater Victoria School Board trustees Wednesday night proposed a fall referendum to obtain $1,933,117 to complete unfinished projects.

A total of $3,358,991 was originally appropriated for the projects under the last referendum held two years ago.

Trustees blame rising construction costs for the shortage of money. But it was pointed out that the estimates for new schools to be built under the last referendum were worked out by the school district in conjunction with the department of education before any architects were consulted.

Trustees approved the revised estimates on the projects. The proposed supplementary referendum will likely go before the voters later this fall.

Details of the capital expenses must first be approved by the department of education.

CONCERN EXPRESSED

There was some concern expressed that the department of education would reduce the amount of supplementary funds required.

Said trustee E. J. Wood: "If the government reduces this amount we're going to be in the same position again."

"Then we are going to have to have a mini-referendum to the supplementary referendum to the referendum."

COSTS REALISTIC

Buildings and grounds chairman trustee Peter Bunn said the figures for the cost of completing the unfinished projects "are realistic as of this time."

If the $1,933,117 figure remains unaltered and the referendum is approved by the voters the school board plans to spend the money on the following projects.

Acquiring and developing school sites: Fairburn Elementary, $36,300 and North Ward Elementary, $75,000.

A letter from city manager Dennis Young informed the board the price per-acre of the new North Ward school site may go well beyond the original estimate of $20,000 an acre.

The amounts of supplementary funds required on other school projects are:

Bank Street Elementary, $83,200; Fairburn Elementary, $48,736; Hillcrest Elementary, $49,296; James Bay Elementary, $82,264; Macaulay Elementary, $738; Monterey Elementary, $8,400; Newton Elementary, $233,235; North Ridge Elementary, $49,296; North Ward Elementary, $233,235; Rock Heights Elementary, $125,000; Victor Elementary, $22,466; Central Junior Secondary, $3,512; Christie Point Junior Secondary, $310,000; Esquimalt Junior Secondary, $15,000; Lansdowne Junior Secondary, $2,988; Reynolds Road Junior Secondary, $310,720; S. J. Willis Junior Secondary, $4,300 and Oak Bay Junior Secondary, $6,000.

FURNISHINGS

Furnishing and equipping buildings for school purposes will cost an additional $7,000 at Christie Point and Reynolds Road schools and provision for the new courses will cost $48,600.

Plans and supervision will be set $119,879 and $47,952 will be set aside for contingencies.

Drunk Charge Questioned

Defence lawyers Wednesday tried to throw out in court a hassle that occurred May 29 at a Saanich home.

The episode at 3191 Carman resulted in two men being charged with obstructing Constable Bill Chisholm. They are Robert Faulds, 1604 Oakland, and Donald Butler, 3445 Beach Drive.

Lawyers Alan Bigelow and Jack Gatehouse, who represent the two accused, cross-examined Detective George Dennison about what happened when he arrived on the scene.

Earlier Constable Chisholm had testified he arrested John Waring, at whose home the party was held, on a drunk charge. He said Faulds and Butler obstructed him and Waring was able to get away from him and back into the house.

Detective Dennison said the crowd at the party was belligerent and hostile to police. He said Faulds yelled at them to be quiet and then argued with him about the legality of Waring's arrest.

Detective Dennison said he had no doubt that Waring was intoxicated although, he said under cross-examination, Waring was not "blind drunk."

He said Waring evaded his grasp when he put his hand on Waring's arm and later Waring ran out of the house. Detective Dennison said that if he had met Waring walking on the street "I may not" have arrested him for intoxication.

The trial was adjourned to hear evidence from two other detectives who were on the scene. A date for the hearing will be set Sept. 30.

GERMANS CONQUER HIGHEST PEAK IN B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A team of German mountain climbers has conquered the highest peak in British Columbia.

The men opened a tour of North American mountains in early September by climbing Mount Waddington, 13,260 feet of rock and ice 150 miles northwest of Vancouver.

NDP Chief to Address Rally in Victoria

New Democratic Party leader Tommy Douglas will speak in the Royal Theatre at 8 p.m. Sept. 23.

A party spokesman said Wednesday Mr. Douglas has been scheduled to speak in the Royal Theatre at 8 p.m. Sept. 23.

Youths Moved To Adult Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two youths charged with slaying a man in Stanley Park were transferred to adult court Wednesday by juvenile court judge William Selbie. The suspects, both 17, are due to appear in magistrate's court Thursday.

An all-candidate meeting is being arranged for Nov. 3 in the McPherson Playhouse by University of Victoria student activities director Gordon Pollard.

The Progressive Conservatives have nominated incumbent George Chatterton in Esquimalt-Saanich and a Conservative nominating convention will be held in Victoria Sept. 29.

Liberal incumbent David Groos is favored to take the Victoria nomination which will be held at 8 p.m. Sept. 23 in Holyrood House.

Insurance agency manager David Elrix has declared himself in the running for the Liberal nomination in Esquimalt-Saanich. The nominating convention will be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday in Tillicum School.

New Democratic Party candidate Len Stephenson has already been nominated in Esquimalt-Saanich and Victoria NDP members will meet next week to choose their candidate.

Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit Association will be at 8 p.m. Oct. 4 to nominate a federal candidate.

United Faces Saints

Balance is the big thing as Pacific Coast Soccer League teams get ready to kick the lid off a new season with a bevy of Anderson Cup games.

Six clubs will be in action Saturday and the other two clubs in the circuit—Vancouver Columbus and New Westminster Royals—will get around to booting Sunday at Vancouver's Callister Park.

Victoria United will crash the curtain-raising act Saturday, tangling at 2 p.m. with Vancouver St. Andrews at Royal Athletic Park in a first-round cup tussle.

The Scots, returning one of Canadian soccer's most famous names to the game, are the club that has restored balance to the PCSL, which operated as a seven-team league last season.

BALANCED SCHEDULE

Return of St. Andrews to make it an eight-club loop has been welcome news to fans because it will mean that all clubs will be in action on most week-ends during the season.

All seven of last season's teams are set for another campaign although one—Vancouver Canadians—will operate under the new name of Burnaby Villa.

Villas will usher in their portion of the season Saturday at University of B.C., tangling with UBC Thunderbirds. In Saturday's other match, Vancouver Firefighters will clash with North Shore Luckies at Callister.

All are opening round games in the Anderson Cup competition, played annually by league clubs to bolster their injured players' fund.

France Improves World Cup Hopes

OSLO (AP)—France defeated Norway 1-0 Wednesday in a World Cup soccer qualification game.

Victory boosted France's chances to qualify for the final tournament in England next year.

France and Norway top the qualification group which also includes Yugoslavia and Luxembourg. Both have six points in four games. Yugoslavia has four points in three games and Luxembourg no points in four games.

Yugoslavs Blanked By Spanish Club, 4-0

MADRID (AP)—Atletico de Madrid of Spain defeated Dynamo of Zagreb, Yugoslavia, 4-0, in their first game of the opening round of the European Cup of Cup Winners at the Metropolitan Stadium before 55,000 spectators Wednesday.

Atletico de Madrid led 2-0 at half time.

GETTING ACTION WITH A WEDGE

SINCE THE SWING WITH THE WEDGE IS A RELATIVELY EASY ONE AND, AS A RESULT, PRODUCES LESS SPIN, IT IS OFTEN ADVANTAGEOUS TO PLAY A HOOK.

THE EXTRA SPIN PLACED ON A BALL BY DRAWING IT ALLOWS THE SHOT TO LAND MORE SOFTLY AND WITH GREATER STOPPING ACTION.

A WEDGE IS DRAWN IN THE SAME MANNER AS ANY CLUB, MOVING THE HANDS FARTHER TO THE RIGHT ON THE GRIP AND CLOSING THE FACE SLIGHTLY AT ADDRESS.

HERE ARE TWO IMPORTANT MUSTS: HIT HARD WITH YOUR RIGHT HAND, ATTEMPT THIS SHOT ONLY FROM A PERFECT LIE.

Only Bower, Sawchuk Certain of Leaf Jobs

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, dethroned last season after three years as Stanley Cup champions, headed for their Peterborough, Ont., training camp today under notice that almost everyone would have to fight for his job.

Punch Imlach, the Leafs' coach and general manager, exempted only Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk, his two veteran goaltenders, from the warning that the players will have to convince him they belong in the National Hockey League if they want to be in the lineup when the season opens Oct. 23.

During the winning year, Imlach tended to stick with his regulars, making only one or two changes each season. But Montreal Canadiens knocked the Leafs out in the semi-finals on their way to the cup last spring and Imlach said this time every one of the 80 players in camp will have "a good shot at making the NHL."

"With the exception of Bower and Sawchuk, who are the two best goalies in the world, the rest of the players will have to earn their tuition fee."

Imlach noted that the newcomers include established NHL players like defenceman Marcel Pronovost, centre Eddie Joyal and left winger Larry Jeffrey, acquired in a trade with Detroit Red Wings, and centre Orland Kurtenbach and right winger Andy Hebenton from Boston Bruins.

The coach said he isn't worried about signing players. "I've got the strongest contingent I ever had. If they won't sign their contracts, they won't play. We've got enough players to replace anybody and a player becomes a holdout only after the first league game."

One veteran won't be back, Dickie Moore, the 35-year-old left winger the Leafs coaxed out of retirement last season, told Imlach he is hanging up his skates for keeps. Moore, who led the NHL in scoring twice in 12 years with the Canadiens, managed only two goals in 38 games last year.

Imlach is contemplating the continuation of an experiment he tried last season—moving up rugged Tim Horton from his defence spot.

One veteran won't be back, Dickie Moore, the 35-year-old left winger the Leafs coaxed out of retirement last season, told Imlach he is hanging up his skates for keeps. Moore, who led the NHL in scoring twice in 12 years with the Canadiens, managed only two goals in 38 games last year.

Imlach is contemplating the continuation of an experiment he tried last season—moving up rugged Tim Horton from his defence spot.

Warning that the players will have to convince him they belong in the National Hockey League if they want to be in the lineup when the season opens Oct. 23.

During the winning year, Imlach tended to stick with his regulars, making only one or two changes each season. But Montreal Canadiens knocked the Leafs out in the semi-finals on their way to the cup last spring and Imlach said this time every one of the 80 players in camp will have "a good shot at making the NHL."

"With the exception of Bower and Sawchuk, who are the two best goalies in the world, the rest of the players will have to earn their tuition fee."

Imlach noted that the newcomers include established NHL players like defenceman Marcel Pronovost, centre Eddie Joyal and left winger Larry Jeffrey, acquired in a trade with Detroit Red Wings, and centre Orland Kurtenbach and right winger Andy Hebenton from Boston Bruins.

The coach said he isn't worried about signing players. "I've got the strongest contingent I ever had. If they won't sign their contracts, they won't play. We've got enough players to replace anybody and a player becomes a holdout only after the first league game."

WELSH CHOIR THRILLS VICTORIANS

Standing Cheer for Magical Sound

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

More than 1,500 thrilled to a magical blend of sound Wednesday night.

And they stood and cheered when the Pandyrus Male Voice from South Wales concluded its long-awaited performance in Central Junior High School.

The 81 singers, under their conductor Glynn Jones, gave a display of choral artistry such as is rarely heard; and there was a fresh outburst of cheering when Mr. Jones announced that the choir will return here during the 1967 centennial celebrations.

The great hall was packed to the doors, hundreds were turned away and many were content to stand throughout the two-hour program.

It was the biggest outburst of enthusiasm locally since the National Youth Orchestra performed in the Royal Theatre last August.

VERATILITY

The Welshmen demonstrated their versatility in a program ranging from grand opera to 16th century choral works, Negro spirituals and new arrangements of old hymn tunes.

Admirably balanced and controlled, the fresh clear voices ranged easily from the most delicate shades of pianissimo to full crescendo.

"I have never heard such beautiful diction," commented Frank Tupperman, seasoned conductor of the Arion and other Victoria choirs.

Conductor Glynn Jones kept up a lively commentary on the music and threw in a few jokes along the way. He said the choir was beset with difficulties before it took off from Wales last Thursday.

Its featured soloist, John Davies, had to stay behind and frantic last-minute efforts were made to find a substitute. Edward Plucknett, leading baritone with the Welsh Opera Company was the fortunate choice.

Not only has he a rich, mellow voice and sang superbly, but deserves the greatest commendation for coming with the group to Canada at 12 hours' notice during which time he had to acquire a passport and a vaccination.

The choir arranged their individual annual holidays together so that they could come on the tour. Each man has had to help pay his own way, with the willing co-operation of his wife and family, who sacrificed their own vacations to the cause.

Mr. Plucknett's fine round tone and clear diction were revealed in the Prelude to Pagliacci and he responded to cries of "encore" with a traditional Welsh ballad.

The second soloist was Mrs. Beryl Watts, a daughter of Davy Jones who was one of the founder members of the Pandyrus choir back in 1924.

FOLK SONGS

She delighted the traditionalists with a selection of folk songs in the Welsh tongue.

In operatic works by Mozart, Verdi, Gounod and Wagner, the choir revealed a disciplined musicianship born of long training and devotion.

Intricate shades of harmony were heard in the performance of two works by the North Wales composer William Matthias, Nos a Bore and Pren ar-y-Bryn.

both dedicated to conductor Glynn Jones.

FORMED IN 1924

Mr. Jones told how the choir was formed in 1924 when 40 singers met in a tin shed at Tylorstown, Glamorgan-shire. They sang and entertained throughout the depression when more than two-thirds of the population were out of work.

"Many Welsh people came out to Canada during those dark years and part of the purpose of our Canadian tour was to meet as many of them as possible."

The visit was financed by a year-long campaign to raise nearly $20,000 in towns and villages of the Rhondda Fach area of South Wales.

But, in addition, each member of the choir contributed $120 toward the cost.

They were welcomed at a reception in the Mayfair Shopping Centre Wednesday afternoon by hundreds of Vancouver Island and by officials of Victoria Cymrodorion Society, the Arion Male Choir, the Rotary Boys Choir and St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society.

"It was one of the happiest occasions I can remember," said James McPherson, president of the Arion choir.

Actor Offered Home, Job

VENICE, Calif. (UPI)—Actor Tom Conway, who had nothing to celebrate two days ago, enjoyed his 61st birthday today with a modest party signaling a partial solution to financial troubles that beset him despite earnings of almost $900,000.

The brother of actor George Sanders was found Monday living in a $2-a-day hotel in this ocean-front community. He conceded he was "destitute," facing possible eviction.

But scores of persons offered help when stories were published concerning his financial plight.

Friends offered him a section of their 47-room West Hollywood home into which he will move Sunday. Conway, who has appeared in 283 movies, said he also received two offers of jobs, one from Los Angeles and another from Yuma, Ariz., both restaurants.

"My situation is complicated but encouraging," he said.

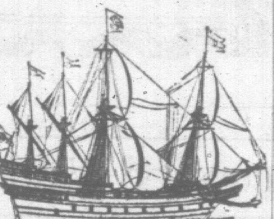

Conway played the Falcon in movies, The Saint on radio and Inspector Mark Sabre on television.

Natural Society To View Birds

The Victoria Natural History Society will hold a bird field trip to Goldstream Park on Saturday under the leadership of Murray Matheson.

The group will leave from the corner of Hillside and Douglas at 9:30 a.m. to meet at the park picnic site at 10 a.m. Visitors are welcome.

The society's group meets every Saturday at the parking lot at Douglas and Hillside at 1:30 p.m. for field trips under the leadership of Freeman King.

Big Fanfare Launches Arts Festival

LONDON (CP)—In a ceremony that combined British pageantry with exotic touches of African and Asian culture, Prince Philip today officially opened the 22-country Commonwealth arts festival, which bursts into life tonight with music, ballet and drama performances and a great dance gala.

Pantries from British military trumpeters, native drumming from Ceylon and music from a Ghanaian band filled the lofty, white-pillared hall of Whitehall banqueting house as some 500 invited guests, including Commonwealth high commissioners, assembled to hear the prince inaugurate the 18-day festival.

The Queen's husband spoke of the "stimulating diversity" of art forms that had been brought together for the first time.

ROAD TO FREEDOM

Philip said it is through the arts that "mankind can free itself from the shackles of materialism."

The inaugural ceremony was followed by a dedication service at St. Mary-le-Bow in Cheapside. After a gala luncheon at the Mansion House, Prince Philip embarked on a tour of art exhibitions at the Royal Academy and the Commonwealth Institute, and was later to attend a seven-country dance gala at the Royal Albert Hall.

The Queen tonight attends the opening concert of the festival, given by the Sydney symphony orchestra at the Royal Festival Hall.

Simultaneously at the Piccadilly Theatre the curtain goes up on the Royal Winnipeg Ballet in a program of short contemporary ballets, and at the Scala Theatre on a drama company from Eastern Nigeria performing two native plays.

Northern Residents Rally to Pay Fine

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—A trust fund was set up Wednesday to pay the $500 fine levied earlier against William Grant, former Yukon Indian agent, on six counts of misusing funds to provide services for Indians.

The B.C. and Yukon Appeal Court set the maximum fine in upholding a crown appeal, saying that while Grant used the funds for apparently good ends, there was no excuse for his behavior.

Grant was fined $10 on each count in June by Mr. Justice John Parker, who said many Yukon Indians then had adequate housing they would not have had "if Grant had not come here."

However, the appeal court said, Mr. Justice Parker, "completely overlooked" the fact that Grant had a duty to use the federal relief funds according to government policy.

The three-man court said Grant "well knew that the funds had been applied in each instance charged . . . in a manner contrary to that approved by parliament."

The court added: "We are firmly of the opinion that such conduct on the part of a civil servant cannot be condoned." It fined Grant $450 on the first count and $10 on each of the others.

Later, the public fund was established by the weekly Whitehorse Star. "Several people, before the courtroom had emptied, wanted to know if they could help pay the fine," editor Flo Whyard said.

A crown appeal against the acquittal of Joseph Armishaw, former assistant to Mr. Grant, was dismissed. He was acquitted in June on four charges of uttering forged documents.

Later, Chief Justice H. I. Bird of the appeal court, said no action would be taken against CBC commentator Max Ferguson over a radio program dealing with the appeal.

'ANY MAJORITY GOV'T BETTER THAN NONE'

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin Wednesday night singled out the need for a strong majority government as the main issue of Canada's fifth federal election campaign in eight years.

"If it can't be a Liberal government with a majority, let it be some other government with a majority," said Mr. Martin, indicating quickly that he thought such a turn of events improbable.

'DIEF'S IMAGE WEAKENED IN ALBERTA'

Socred Sees Socred Gains in the West

OTTAWA (CP)—Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson said Wednesday the Nov. 8 general election will fail to produce a majority government but will result in gains for his party. The gains, he said in an interview, "would come despite the fact the party does not intend to campaign in Quebec province. In the 1962 election, Social Credit won 20 of its 24 seats in Quebec, but the split to form the Ralliement des Creditistes and defections to the Conservative party cut this figure to five. All five have indicated they will not run again as Social Credit candidates, although some may run as independents. He said Social Credit would capitalize on Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's "weakened" image in Alberta and on dissatisfaction with the policies of the federal government by supporters of the provincial Social Credit regimes in Alberta and British Columbia. The Social Credit party today begins a two-day platform-building meeting to lay out the Mr. Thompson said Social Credit chances are excellent in campaign, which will start officially Oct. 8 in Vancouver.

RETIREMENT from politics has been announced by Leon Balcer, the Quebecer who withdrew from the Conservative party early this year after having failed in a bid to topple party leader John Diefenbaker. Mr. Balcer had represented Trois-Rivieres in parliament continuously since 1949.

PERRAULT:

'Pearson Called Their Bluff'

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Provincial Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Wednesday Prime Minister Pearson called the bluff of the other four federal political leaders when he announced the Nov. 8 general election.

Mr. Perrault told a young Liberal-sponsored meeting here "the election gun is aimed at their heads for a change and they're screaming in agony."

"I have no sympathy for the self-righteous breast-beating of Messrs. Diefenbaker, Douglas, Thompson and Caouette."

He accused the federal leaders of engaging in "an irresponsible kind of Russian roulette designed to keep the gun at the government's head and keep the country in a perpetual state of election fever."

Mr. Perrault described the Conservative, New Democratic, Social Credit and Creditist leaders as "four feuding political horsemen who rocked the House of Commons and moved non-confidence motions on utterly absurd grounds."

'They Should Steal All Our Policies'

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Robert Strachan, B.C. New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday the federal Liberal government "has been unsuccessful in adopting NDP policies because it didn't adopt all of them."

He told a public meeting here that all NDP policies—both federal and provincial—are completely interdependent.

He said Canada can no longer tolerate "stop-gap" measures, and called for a massive reorganization of all aspects of Canadian society.

Mr. Strachan said Canada Economic Council figures show the country's work force will increase by more than 1,000,000 by 1970.

"When you add the workers displaced by automation," he said, "it becomes apparent that 2,000,000 new jobs will be needed in the next five years."

He said any government whose economic policies do not aim directly toward creating these jobs "is perpetrating a crime on this country."

Liberty Backers Face Hard Fight

Church Runs Risk As Enemy of Gospel, American Prelate Tells Opposition

(Times News Services)

VATICAN CITY—Joseph Elmer Cardinal Ritter, of St. Louis, Mo., today led eight prelates in vigorous defence of every man's right to worship as he pleases. He demanded that the Vatican ecumenical council adopt a document setting this forth as church policy.

Six other speakers on the third day of the final session of the council firmly opposed the statement on religious liberty.

Two American cardinals had pleaded Wednesday for approval of the document. Cardinal Ritter, who opened debate today, said:

"This declaration is a cause for great rejoicing. It leaves nothing to be desired, except approval and promulgation."

"Charity, justice and fidelity require us to allow no delay. If we do not approve this document, we will be running the risk of being numbered among the enemies of the gospel."

Aligning himself with Italian and Spanish opponents of the declaration who spoke Wednesday, Bishop Luigi Carli of Segni, Italy, said the drafters of the religious liberty declaration had "turned and twisted sacred scripture to make it conform to a modern idea."

Backing Cardinal Ritter was Lorenz Cardinal Jaeger of Paderborn, Germany, who said he spoke for 150 other bishops. "The situation of the middle ages has disappeared," he said. "The state must not interfere with the free practice of religion."

Josef Cardinal Slipyj, Roman

Catholic primate of the Ukrainians who has been living at the Vatican since his release from Soviet confinement in 1963, said: "Future generations will be full of admiration for this phase of the council" (because of the religious liberty document).

A major point in the arguments of those advocating the document is that people today, living in a modern society of easy communication and universal education, rightly expect the widest possible liberty in their lives.

This view was expressed by Bishop Emile-Joseph de Smedt of Belgium, who gave the introductory report on the document for the secretariat for Christian unity, which is sponsoring it.

The document itself expresses the same view, saying that modern times have brought a keener sense of personal and civil human dignity, requiring that no ing whatever religion he wants "within proper limits."

The text of the proposed decree was strongly attacked by conservative churchmen when 2,200 prelates gathered in St. Peter's Basilica Wednesday for the opening debate of the fourth and final session of the council.

NATIONAL campaign chairman of the Progressive Conservative party is Ed Goodman, a Toronto lawyer who resigned from the PC party in 1963 over a disagreement with leader John Diefenbaker.

'People Don't Have Guts' To Set Example for Youth

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Edmonton's deputy police chief says adults are responsible for much of the increase in juvenile crime.

Adults contribute heavily to a general failure in society to accept individual responsibility and, as a result, bolster teenage rebellion against constituted authority, Deputy Chief F. E. Sloan told the annual conference of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police Wednesday.

"People no longer have the guts to stand up and be counted to set an example for our young people," he said during a panel discussion on the youthful offender.

No children are born delinquents, he said, "they get that way from what is around them."

Chief K. R. McIver of Calgary said a major factor in the increased juvenile crime rate "is that we live in a day when there is no longer a clear line of demarcation between what is right and what is wrong, and no one is labelled as being just plain bad."

Discipline, he said, is something that has been relegated to the dark ages.

YOUTH NEGLECTED—Millions are being spent on reforestation and combatting soil erosion, Chief McIver added, but "the nation's biggest resource, the country's youth, is being neglected."

Chief J. H. Carpenter of Lethbridge, Alta., set off a bomb shell when he suggested lower-

SNOWDON FINED $6 ON PARKING VIOLATION

LONDON (AP)—The Earl of Snowdon had to cross the Thames to retrieve his car from a police station Wednesday. Police towed the sports car away after finding it in a no-parking area in London's Westminster district. Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret, paid £2 ($6) to get his car back.

Overtime Pay Not in Cheques

Postal workers here are wondering why the federal government hasn't paid them for overtime, some of it going back as far as June.

"We are a little bit mystified," Larry Ryan, secretary of the local branch of the Canadian Postal Employees Association, told Victoria Labour Council Wednesday night.

The federal government deducted time lost in the week-long postal strike in July from the employees on the first pay cheque of this month.

"Yet the government owes us money and hasn't paid us yet," he said.

"It is a matter of some misgiving among the staff."

HUGE BACKLOG
In an interview after the meeting, Mr. Ryan said most of the overtime was involved immediately after the strike ended when there was a huge backlog of mail to clear.

He pointed out that payment for overtime in money rather than time off was agreed to by the federal government.

Postal clerks here are owed an average of 50 hours overtime with a little less for letter carriers.

Mr. Ryan himself worked 66 hours overtime for which he hasn't been paid.

The overtime represented between $100 and over $200 depending on the individual person's pay classification and amount of overtime worked.

The postal employees contacted Revenue Minister Benson in Ottawa, who replied that he was referring the matter to Postmaster-General Tremblay.

Since then nothing has materialized, he said.

Non-Nuclear Role Urged By Labor

The Victoria Labour Council unanimously endorsed a resolution Wednesday night seeking a non-nuclear role for Canada.

The resolution will be taken to the annual meeting in November of the B.C. Federation of Labour.

Proliferation of nuclear weapons is a mounting threat to human survival, the resolution said, and Canada "set a bad example" by allowing nuclear weapons to be stored here.

If approved by the B.C. Federation of Labour, the 110,000-member body would urge after the Nov. 8 election that the new administration declare a non-nuclear role for the country.

In addition, Canada's disarmament negotiators should play a more active part in bringing about agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

In other resolutions, the labor council endorsed this year's United Appeal Campaign and fully supported the strike of brewery workers, now in its fourth week.

NDP Gets IWA Backing

VANCOUVER (CP)—The International Woodworkers of America put the weight of their western region behind the New Democratic Party on Tuesday after hearing a plea for labor action in politics.

The IWA convention here, representing 35,000 woodworkers, unanimously passed a motion supporting NDP social and economic policies.

Vancouver Wants Land Back

VANCOUVER (CP)—Mayor William Rathie wants back the choice downtown block it sold to the provincial government last year.

Furthermore, he doesn't want to pay more than the 1964 price tag of $1,800,000.

He says the government has gone back on its word by deciding to put a 40-storey skyscraper on the site, as well as a courthouse addition.

Attorney-General Bommer has turned down an invitation from the mayor and nine civic organizations to attend a meeting on the question. All the groups oppose the skyscraper, primarily because they believe it would give the city too much office space and leave many existing offices vacant.

Legislation has been passed but not proclaimed establishing the University Endowment Corp. to run the skyscraper.

Warmer Forecast Raises Farmers' Hopes

EDMONTON (CP)—Forecasters Wednesday night held out for warmer weather in Alberta and Saskatchewan and at least a five-day period in which soaked grain crops can dry. "An upward trend in temperatures does seem to be building up slowly and surely into a good spell for drying weather," the Dominion weather office at Edmonton said.

"The trend is just becoming evident," the weather office said. "It might last for a fair period, perhaps at least five days. That's as far ahead as we can forecast."

Warmer weather began to creep into northwestern Alberta from the Yukon and northern British Columbia Wednesday.

The weather office said it likely would travel slowly south. "Things look a little better. We'll still have a bit of cloud and it'll still be a bit on the cool side. But winds will be quite brisk and this may help the drying quite a bit."

The weather office forecast scattered snow flurries of "little consequence" compared with snowfalls of between one and six inches in Alberta Wednesday.

Overnight low temperatures of around 30 degrees were forecast for several days but "we might just have enough patchy cloud that it won't be that bad."

Ex-Policeman Held

VANCOUVER (CP)—Earl Roy Burton, 36, a former sports figure and policeman here, has been charged with theft. Burton is accused of stealing a set of keys, wristwatch and wallet containing about $380 from William Chushman, also of Vancouver.

Burton is a former North Shore Indians lacrosse star and was a member of the Vancouver police department from 1951 until he resigned in 1963.

CAPT. HARRIS HONORED

He Arrived Here During 1888 Trip

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

On Saint Valentine's Day 1888, the sealing schooner Sapphireshipped into Victoria from Halifax around Cape Horn.

Soon after, 20-year-old Capt. Charles I. Harris had his first glimpse of the port where he was to spend the rest of his adventurous life.

Still dapper and alert today, Capt. Harris will celebrate his 98th birthday here on Sept. 23. Wednesday night he was honored on the 75th anniversary of his initiation as a worshipful brother of Vancouver Lodge No. 2 A.F. and A.M.

Present were the grand junior warden, Rt. worshipful brother James Hogg; the district deputy grand master; the worshipful master, officers and members of St. John's Lodge No. 21, Ladysmith, and representatives from many mainland lodges.

Two of his sons—Jack of Victoria and Alfred of Seattle—who have a total of 75 years' membership in Freemasonry between them, joined in the tribute.

SILVER TRAY

The official historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge gave an address on the life of Capt. Harris and presented him with an inscribed silver tray.

Capt. Harris lived through one of Victoria's most exciting eras, when sealing schooners anchored all winter in the upper Inner Harbor and went to sea in spring; when the waterfront was picturesque with the type of skipper Jack London made famous in his book, Sea Wolf.

He was born Sept. 28, 1867, at the village of Galarus Bay on the rugged Atlantic coast of Cape Breton Island, N.S.

His first opportunity for adventure came in June, 1887, when he signed on as second mate aboard the schooner Sapphireshipped bound for the Pacific Northwest. The master and owner was his future father-in-law, Capt. John Graham Cox.

The Sapphires had a memorable voyage of 253 days from Halifax to Vancouver. She came around Cape Horn with cracked and broken spars and most of her provisions gone and put into San Diego.

But the port could not supply the repairs she needed and the schooner limped up to Vancouver—a voyage of 55 weary days. She crossed to Victoria and Capt. Harris landed at the wharf at the foot of Yates Street. He decided to settle in Vancouver, and the following year, after winning his master's certificate, he applied for membership in Vancouver and Quadra Lodge No. 2.

SALVAGE WORK

He engaged in salvage work on the coast seas and became master of the Salvor, owned by the B.C. Marine Railway Company.

He had an exciting career in the colorful sealing industry on this coast until it was closed by international agreement, and two of his schooners were the Maybelle and the Mary Taylor.

Subsequently he won fame as a coastal pilot and smoked as many as 20 black cigars a day given him, by grateful ship-owners.

In fair weather, and foul, he went out to Race Rocks, boarded a President liner inbound from the Orient and brought her up to the ocean docks in Victoria.

Two weeks later he would take the liner back to the Race for her long haul across the Pacific to Yokohama.

STORMY COAST

Capt. Harris was raised on the stormy Atlantic coast and whenever he played hooky from school it was to the seashore that he went.

By the time he reached his late teens, he had earned a temporary coasting master's ticket for Nova Scotia and served on two large schooners, the Eastern Tripper and the James Ryan.

Three years after he won his master's certificate in Victoria, Capt. Harris married Eugenia Cox, daughter of Capt. Graham Cox, owner of the schooners Sapphires, E. B. Marvin and the Carlotia Cox.

They had four sons, Graham, Alfred, Jack and Harry, and one daughter, Margaret, all still living.

In his tribute to Capt. Harris, the historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge said:

"We pay tribute tonight to our able, courageous, distinguished and well-loved dean of past masters of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge."

Liquor in McPherson Possible By Way of Restaurant Licence

McPherson Theatre goes for a small, separate lounge for the serving of drinks to bona fide patrons intending to have a meal.

Before McPherson Playhouse opened in February, there was a spirited controversy over whether it should apply for a bar licence for its spacious foyer area, to serve drinks to theatre patrons.

But the main problem the city is facing at the present time is finding an operator for the restaurant.

Council has been trying unsuccessfully for two years to find a person willing to operate the restaurant on the city's terms.

Under municipal law public bodies are not allowed to enter into lease agreements with private individuals for more than five years.

It is generally felt by prospective operators that this is too short a period of time for them to write off their capital investment, hence the installation of major equipment by the city.

William Webb, president of the local restaurant association, told committee members the city should have a greater degree of permanency assured by an operator.

Nick North operator of the Imperial Inn, said the city would discourage fly-by-night operators by requiring that the first 12 years of rent, about $12,000, be paid in advance and be subject to forfeiture for unsatisfactory performance.

The square committee agreed to incorporate the proposals of the restaurant group into a tentative contract and submit it to a local restaurant operator who is negotiating with the city for the operation of the Centennial square restaurant.

If the new contract is not acceptable the city would then advertise for operators.

The course includes basic army training as well as bend training.

Anyone interested in joining can telephone the chief instructor Capt. Fred Fotheringham at 477-3221.

Section A: 1. (tie), George Morgan and Harry Brown, and Marjorie Powell and Les Isaacson; 3. Roger Allen and George Marsden; 4. Elizabeth Warren and Jack Goldie; 5. Dave Haywood and Jack McLaren; 6. Lily Roseboom and Gladys Cropp.

Section B: 1. Gwen Graham and Marjorie Eaton; 2. Anne Dye and Jim Duprau; 3. Ida Druce and Laura Tingley; 4. Florence Curran and Eg Robertson; 5. Hilda Price and Walt Allen; 6. Joan Smith and Les Stewart.

Two military aircraft buzzed over the city this morning exciting park strollers.

A military spokesman explained the exercises as routine. The two aircraft were Neptune sub-chasers from RCAF Comox taking publicity pictures of another with city landmarks as background.

Their flight over the city lasted about an hour.

A stereo record player, grand prize at the Strawberry Vale Fair, was won by Mrs. W. J. Kennedy, 180, Helmecken.

Other door prizes were won by Frank Austrowski, 3534 Tili-cum Rd.; Doreen Jones, 2864 High St.; Mrs. W. McCaughey, 333 Gorge Rd.; James Aliman, 775 Newbury; Brenda Lundglad, 1255 Stancil Lane.

The Vincent Price collection of fine art has acquired more than 35 paintings from local artists. Price of the deal is estimated at $3,000.

Victoria artist Donald Harvey said Wednesday that "this makes the future of art in Victoria very promising."

Works selected by Vincent Price were created by Mr. Harvey, Richard Cicimarra, Maxwell Bates, Herbert Siebner and Flemming Jorgensen.

Country and western balladeer Cam Deveau, 32, Montreal Street, says many Victorians want live music to drink by in beer parlors and cocktail lounges.

"This would not only give local musicians work, but it would also bring in tourist and booking agents who might be able to give us that big break," he said.

A former Victoria student, David Kerridge, has been appointed a senior residence fellow at Carleton University at Ottawa. His duties will be to assist in advising students living on campus and working with the students' residence government.

Minister Power In Parks Scored

By JIM HUME

Thieves Enter Area Homes In Daylight

A rash of daylight break-ins and thefts Wednesday were reported by city police today.

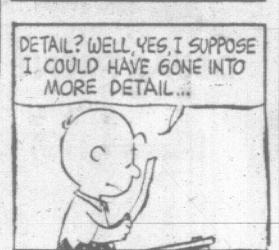

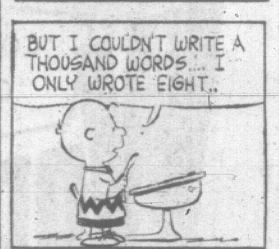

Thieves forced the rear exit door of the Fox Theatre and stole $100 in small bills.

Robert Ross MacKinnon, 1461 Richmond, reported that his home was ransacked and $70 in cash stolen.

At 537 St. Charles, Thomas Price also reported thieves entered his home and stole some silver dollars and other small articles.

The home of Eric Day, 711 Richmond, was also ransacked and a bottle of rye stolen.

In the evening, G. Bate, 2010 Fernwood, frightened a thief who had broken into his store by forcing the lock of the door. Nothing was stolen.

Ask The Times

Q: Is it possible to see Mount Rainier from Victoria? If not what is the name of the mountain which can be seen on a clear day to the right of Mount Baker, J.W.

A: Officials at Gonzales Observatory say Mount Rainier is visible on a clear day. It is "the mountain on the right of Mount Baker."

Q: What is the height of St. Andrew's R.C. Cathedral spire? M.D.

A: 202 feet, says the Cathedral Priory.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor coins, stamps or signatures. These should be submitted to a dealer.

More Time To Study Piano Offer

Offers to help supply a concert piano for McPherson Playhouse will get further study, members of Victoria city council recreation committee agreed today.

Appreciative of an offer to provide a six-foot $2,400 Japanese piano with a $1,000 discount, committee members felt they should hear more about bigger concert models, which range up to nine feet and cost around $13,000.

Only the best should be considered for the civic theatre, city manager Dennis Young suggested.

Two piano dealers have made submissions to the committee so far, and private individuals have expressed an interest in the matter.

Power of the mines minister to make rulings controlling mines in parks was attacked today by the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce.

Presenting their annual brief to the government, chamber delegates said present legislation, which leaves the granting of mining rights to the jurisdiction of the minister of recreation and conservation, is too restrictive.

"To avoid loss in the risk capital which these and other similar properties can attract, the chamber of commerce urges the government to amend the act respecting parks so as to state in the act itself the specific rights to prospect, stake and mine in large class B parks," the brief stated.

At the last session of the legislature there was considerable discussion as to whether mining should be permitted in Tweedsmuir Park on Vancouver Island.

The submission today was outlined by the annual meeting of the chamber last May in Prince George.

A 35-page book of resolutions and policy statements containing all the resolutions was compiled.

RAISING AGE

In it the Chamber asks the government to work towards goals as varied as raising the school age to 17 years and the finding of employment for able-bodied recipients of welfare.

Under education the Chamber urged the government:

To establish a continuing committee on educational matters in the province; to continue its support of the community colleges; to expand technological schools; to ask the federal government to make travel, board and lodging expenses for students away from home an allowable income tax deduction and to work towards standardization of school curricula across Canada.

STRIKE VOTE

The Chamber also asked for an amendment of labor laws to make it compulsory to state the time of a strike or a lock-out on strike-vote ballot papers and that the date for such actions be not less than six days and not more than 21 days after the taking of the vote.

Another amendment would see the cabinet given the discretionary power to refer to arbitration any dispute which would in its opinion imperil the health or safety of the general public.

On the taxation front the Chamber asked the government to repeal the B.C. Logging Tax and to grant sales tax exemption on machinery and material used in the manufacturing process.

COMPLETE ROAD

Other recommendations made by the Chamber asked the cabinet to consider completion of the Alberni-Tofino road to highway standards and ensure that it was kept open at all times.

To work toward an agreement with the federal government

ment and the United States regarding the paving of the Alaska Highway.

● Provide ferry sailing between Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay from 6 a.m. to 12 midnight.

● Reduce the speed limit on Highway 401 east of Abbotsford from 70 to 60 miles an hour.

● Abolish the five per cent tax on restaurant meals.

● Limit the size of motors and the speed of boats on small lakes.

● Provide protection for civilian police volunteers similar to that provided for citizens called out for forest-fire fighting duties.

● Permit liquor outlets to remain open on election days.

● Build a new jail in north-west B.C.

Students Plan Rally

University of Victoria students on October 27 will join in on a national day of student demonstrations for free university education, it was announced today.

Uvic student council will establish a committee to consider an off-campus rally and distribution of pamphlets on that day.

The date was selected to come just prior to the November 8 federal election.

Uvic President Dr. Malcolm C. Taylor termed the action by student council as "an excellent idea."

He said: "Any method by which we can publicize this need for higher education without any financial barriers and encourage more high school students to seek it is to be commended. I congratulate these students."

The nation-wide protest has been organized by the Canadian Union of Students with headquarters in Montreal.

The students are asking for the removal of all financial and social barriers to university education with academic qualification being the only requirement for admission.

Uvic student president Paul Williamson said: "We must act now to create an education system that will benefit Canadian society."

Secretary Speaks

Norma Cuthbertson, secretary in Toronto with the Mission to Lepers, will address an open meeting of the local auxiliary in Central Baptist Church Friday at 2 p.m.

Gourmet Wine Comments Make Stewards Pop Cork

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Victoria wine stewards popped their corks this morning. They fizzled at comments from Paul Lamy, spokesman for the newly-formed Victoria Gourmet Club. In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Lamy was quoted as saying that wine waiters in the city "just don't know how to serve wine."

Hotelmen today were nearly unanimous in defending the trade. One voice shared the blame for "lack of good taste in serving wine" equally between customers and wine stewards.

The general view was that the service in wine and food today reflects the high pressure supermarket-taste of the customers.

SPECIALTY HOUSES

A spokesman in defence of the local wine stewards was Clair Bowman who owns two specialty houses in the city with his brother.

Said Mr. Bowman "there are many highly qualified wine stewards in the city who are anxious to perform their art of wine serving for those who will take the time to enjoy it."

The hotelman said that most people who dine out want to sit, eat and go. They won't take the time to dine and enjoy a good bottle of wine. They just "gulp."

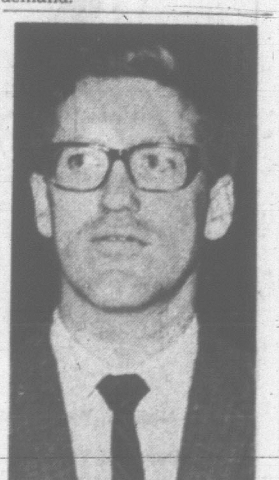

He said that it was rather ridiculous for anyone to believe a hotelman would hire "just anybody" to perform a specialized service "in the face of today's catering competition."

"It would take me at least three months to replace my man now," Mr. Bowman testified, "but I wouldn't hire a man who wouldn't present the same exacting qualifications and neither would any other intelligent hotelman."

Albert Mastboom, assistant maitre d' in a local hotel commented that "unfortunately there is a certain snob in wine service which may not be provided by some wine waiters."

He said that proper training in the trade takes long years and few men bother with it, but "that's because of lack of demand."

FIRST LECTURER to the University of Victoria Extension Association will be Dr. Clyde R. Pope, assistant professor of sociology at Uvic. The meeting will be held at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of the Young Building on the Lansdowne Campus. Dr. Pope is a former research director with the Portland Welfare Council. His topic is juvenile delinquency, causes and treatment.

Attacker Gets Nine Months

An Ontario man was sentenced today to nine months in jail for assaulting a woman while she was house-hunting in the Metchosa area.

"It was a vicious and outrageous assault," Magistrate William Ostler told Joseph R. Gray who pleaded guilty to the charge Wednesday.

Gray, who claimed he had no intention of harming the woman, asked the magistrate to be lenient, claiming he was in need of psychiatric treatment.

Gray followed the 45-year-old woman in a truck and got into conversation with her when she was looking over some property. He suddenly grabbed the woman. When she screamed, he ran.

ARTHUR MAYSE ON VACATION

NEW L.A. RIOTS POSSIBLE, WARNS VISITING MINISTER

By TERRY IZZARD

The Los Angeles riots will break out again unless the city takes swift action, a Los Angeles minister said here today.

Rev. Ralph Bell was in Watts district when the bitter fighting broke out.

Over coffee in his hotel room today, the 31-year-old Negro, a preacher with the Leighton Ford Crusade, spoke at length of his own impressions of the explosive situation.

As chaplain of Los Angeles county jail he chatted with many of the men who took part in pillaging and burning.

Said the amiable father of two: "They were a mixed crowd."

"Some were remorseful for what they had done."

"Others were bitter about the way they had been handled."

"Everyone claimed innocence."

Asked about police actions, the roving preacher said: "There's no doubt police brutality was one reason for the riot."

"Police tend to treat Negroes in that area more brutally than is necessary."

But he does not believe it was the main reason.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Economic depression, poor living conditions and unemployment are all part of the picture.

"Look at it like this," he said. "What has the Civil Rights Act done for these Negroes?"

"They can go into any restaurant—but they can't afford to eat in restaurants."

"They can get a job—except their education isn't sufficient to hold down a job."

"On the face of it they're better off."

"In actual fact they've gained nothing."

He believes it is now up to the city.

If they come through with bet-

Safety Worries About Hunt-Happy Hubby?

By Penny Saver

It's that time of year again! Yes, hunting season is with us and all the men in the Saver household have taken off for the wide-open spaces and little me must sit at home—usually to worry. Hunting is a wonderful sport but accidents are all too prevalent and I shudder when I think that, due to lack of precautionary measures, one of my family could be hurt, being taken for the hunted rather than the hunter. I discovered an item, however, which may cut down on the danger lurking in the woods—that of mistaken identity.

What I discovered is a new type of hunting jacket—of soft, warm, 100-per-cent orlon—and colored in the brightest flame tone. I have ever seen. It's nice-looking as well as practical—and it could be just the incentive I need to try my hand at hunting.

The jacket is designed to be loose-fitting and the hemline comes to the hip for added warmth and comfort. The material is treated to be rain and wind-resistant—keep the cold out while leaving you warm and dry inside. Price of this is $17.95.

To top off this hunting ensemble, there is a fully-insulated cap in tone. Also treated to resist weather, these are selling at $1.95 and $3.95.

If your hunter is going on an overnight trip, make sure he's kept warm and dry with another, really heavy-duty jacket I discovered, selling at $3.95.

This one is fairly light-weight and designed to be worn over a heavy sweater. Completely weather and wind-proofed, the jacket features an over-flap which covers pockets to protect matches, tobacco or anything else you'd like to keep dry.

The man of our house has one particular jacket which he wears hunting all the time. It could be in the midst of a blizzard and he'd still wear that jacket—says it brings him good luck. (It also brings him the sniffs because it's not water-proofed.)

Well, I've solved that problem with a spray-on water-proofer which will make an article of clothing resist the elements. Selling for $1.55 for a six-ounce can, this is the easiest way to insure that the whole family will be safe from colds due to the weather.

In the interests of safety, give Penny a call at 382-3131 and find out where to shop.

Dear Eunice Farmer:

Some of the most beautiful fabrics for fall are hand-loomed and imported from Europe. These fabrics have not been preshrunk; is it necessary?

—Mrs. A. W.

Dear Mrs. A. W.:

It is usually a good idea to preshrink a fabric, especially if you will be doing any heavy pressing for coats and suits. It is a very simple matter to do it at home. You may also have this done professionally at your cleaners for a nominal fee.

Leave the fabric folded if it is double width and lay it out the full length. Thoroughly dampen a sheet (remove excess water by spinning in your machine) and lay it over your fabric. Roll the two together, cover with a plastic sheet and allow to remain covered overnight.

BE SMART—

This is THE bag for the Go-Go Girl, the girl who dashes here and yon, going places, doing things, always in a hurry. Of antique-finished leather, it has three handy compartments, two on one side, one on the other, and an adjustable shoulder strap.

In the morning remove the sheet and carefully pat your wool into shape, keeping all the edges even with selvages matching. It is best to keep this on your carpet. In this way it will not slip (the moisture is not enough to penetrate the carpet). The fabric will take several hours to dry. It is not necessary to press, in fact I don't recommend it as you could easily press it out of shape.

Werner Grecht acts the hair of his fiancée Freda Welmar, in the style which she created last October when she became world champion hair stylist at the biennial competitions, held in Basle, Switzerland. Her creation, "Waves of Vienna," is now the style-setter throughout Europe.

Champions Tell European Story

By PAT DUFOR

Thirty leading hair stylists will gather in the salon of Danny Hajnal this evening to "hone up" on the latest trends in Europe. Their mentors will be an attractive 23-year-old Viennese stylist and her fiancé, Werner Grecht.

Freda Welmar has earned the right to tell the European story abroad. Not only is her creation, "Waves of Vienna" sweeping Europe with its short flowing lines—she's also the only woman to become hair stylist world champion.

She earned her spurs last October in Basle, Switzerland, where she competed with 120 of the best stylists from 20 countries.

She created the best day, evening and artistic styles at the biennial competition and ended by also capturing the award for highest aggregate and the champion crown.

Miss Welmar and her fiancé share a lot in common. Both are 23, began their careers nine years ago and work together in Vienna. Although Freda will permit no one but Werner to set her hair "because I have very difficult hair" she affirms that "he has no say whatsoever in the styles I choose."

Not that Werner doesn't wield a mean set of scissors himself—he's European champion and worked with Freda to place second in the team competitions; also held at Basle last October.

The pair landed in Canada last Saturday and gave a showing in Toronto before heading west for their one-day stand in Victoria. They arrived here last evening and Freda and Werner have decided to stay over another day "because we've fallen in love with the city."

They met Danny Hajnal in Basle and came here "because we couldn't resist his persuasive powers!"

During her week in Canada, Freda has seen three differences between Canadian and European women. "Canadian women wear their hair longer—just missing the smartness of the new flair. But they're much better dressers during the day and use more makeup and with better effect than Europeans."

Freda and Werner are agreed that both Canadian and European women share one trait in common.

"Their choice of hair style is mainly governed by their husband or boy friend."

Couple Exchange Rings and Vows In First United Church Service

Rev. Marvin Fowler officiated when Patricia Fleming McMurchy and Robert Cusack exchanged vows and wedding rings in First United Church that was decorated with white gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums for the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Kathleen M. McMurchy, 434 Heather Street. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Cusack of Merritt, B.C. Harold S. Loepky gave the bride in marriage.

The wedding gown of organza over taffeta was styled with lily point sleeves, princess neck line and tracings of re-embroidered lace, sprinkled with seed pearls, enhancing the fitted bodice and full skirt. The silk illusion net veil misted from a floral rosette. Jewelry was a single strand of culture pearls, gift of the groom. White carnations centred her cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

TEAL BLUE GOWNS

Full-length gowns of teal blue peau de sole with matching lace jackets were worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Robert Rogers; bridesmatron, Mrs. Clifford Henry, and bridesmaid, Miss Gillian Smith. Toning headpieces and white carnation cascade bouquets completed their outfits.

Ushers were the groom's brother, Stanley Cusack, and Robert Hague. Clifford Henry was best man.

George F. Rawlings proposed the toast at a reception, held in Holyrood House. The head-table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake that was decorated with pink roses and topped with doves and mother of pearl bell. Red sweetheart roses completed the table decor.

Guests danced to music played on an electric organ by Steve Barclay, a friend of the bride's family.

Leaving on a honeymoon motoring trip through the United States and the southern part of the province, the bride wore a pink two-piece wool suit, honeybeige picture hat, of ostrich plumes and pink smoke accessories. Her corsage was two gardenias.

LAWNS

By far the cheapest and best fertilizer for your lawn and shrubs is weedfree topsoil. If applied as a top-dressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will after three yearly applications develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. That is how good and lasting lawns used to be made in the days not so long ago when we had not yet heard of chemical fertilizers. Topdressed lawns are moreover far less vulnerable to weeds and, most important of all, require less watering. One 50-lb. bag of chemical fertilizer costing $4.00 contains only 8 pounds of plant food. In comparison, you can buy for the same $4.00 2,500 pounds of weedfree topsoil, of which every pound helps to build up a good lawn.

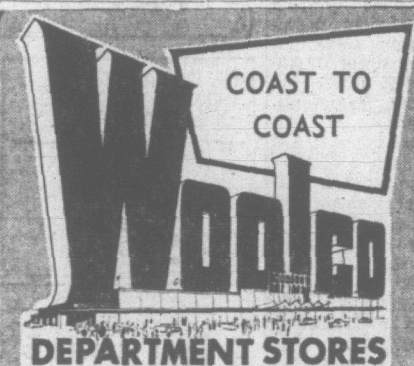

When buying topsoil insist upon soil free of weeds and clay. The cost of doweeding is such that apart from the health hazards involved it does not pay to buy topsoil containing seeds of weeds.

Two inches of weedfree topsoil are also minimum requirements for making a good weedfree new lawn. For best quality topsoil that is free of weeds and clay, contact:

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Farewell Tea Today

Mrs. Alan Leith, who with her family will be leaving Victoria shortly to make her home in Vancouver, was honored this afternoon at the tea hour by Mrs. Harold G. Robinson. The affair was held at the Robinsons' home on Richmond Road. Assisting the hostess was her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Harold M. Robinson. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. H. Youson, Mrs. S. M. Parker, Mrs. R. M. Petrie, Mrs. V. Beaumont, Mrs. T. G. Daltzell, Mrs. R. L. Buller, Mrs. D. G. Ferguson and Mrs. K. G. Wiper. There were 40 guests.

Leaves for South

Miss Lynda Colbert left recently for Tulsa, Okla., where she will be attending the Oral Roberts University as a first-year arts student. Miss Colbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Colbert of Island Road, is a former student at the University of Victoria. She will return to Victoria in the early spring.

Luncheon

The Princess Mary Restaurant was the setting, recently, for a luncheon to honor bride-elect Miss Linda Andrew. Hostess Miss Marilyn Stansby presented the guest of honor with a corsage of rosebuds and carnations. Following the luncheon, the guests gathered in the Parker Avenue home of the hostess. Attending were Mrs. H. Andrew, the bride-elect's mother; Mrs. E. Guy, her grandmother; Mrs. J. Tyre, mother of the groom-elect; Mrs. A. Oliver, his grandmother, and Mrs. J. M. Stansby.

Andre Courreges Takes Victoria By Storm in IODE Fashion Show

Andre Courreges, a young Parisian designer who has been delightfully shocking the more conservative members of the fashionable set, received quite a welcome from Victorians Wednesday afternoon.

The audience ooh'd and ah'd as one of Courreges own models bounced across the stage of the McPherson Playhouse, booted, bonneted and "little girl-ish"—the look which is known as typically Courreges.

One particular outfit of the young designer featured a three-quarter-length jacket of camel tone, accented with flaming red knee-high boots and a "tied-under-the-chin" bonnet en tone. The model opened the top to reveal a skimpy, figure-skimming shift of camel with hemline reaching at least five inches above the knee.

More conservative members of the audience of 800 for the show given by the Robert Burns McKicking Chapter, IODE, delighted in the more traditional apparel from the fashion houses of the world, worn by models flown in from the houses themselves. Fur appeared to be the keynote for fall as model after model walked down the stage in coats of luxurious textured fabric, banded not only at the collar and cuffs with fur, but also at the hemline.

One model posed in a proportioned figure-hugging coat of nubby black wool, which flared from the hipline to a skirt designed for free and easy movement. Highlight of the coat was trim of sleek black beaver at the stand-away collar and knee-length hemline.

Long and silky Canadian mink formed the V-ed neckline of another topper of a soft, creamy champagne tone. Styled for any after-five occasion, the fur ran the length of the front and about the hemline with similar fur echoed in the deep cuffs on the flared three-quarter-length sleeves.

Many models chose an accent of a fur boa, a long length of mink or beaver which they casually slung around their necks as a muffler. Highlight of several other outfits was a muff to match the fur at collar and hemline.

After five occasions, received their own special treatment as the models assembled on the stage in various hostess outfits featuring floor-length skirts or wide-bottomed pyjamas.

Black velvet was a popular choice of the designers for hostess skirts, topped by gaily patterned blouses of silk or brocade. Pyjamas were generally patterned with solid toppers.

One lovely outfit was a figure-hugging shift of zig-zag patterns in blue red and white, all the way to the floor. A slit to the knee aided walking.

Softly feminine was a gown of clinging sooty-black chiffon over flame-red crepe. The model swirled the wide skirt which was topped by a tightly-fitting bodice featuring a plunging neckline in front and almost nothing in back.

CLIMAX OF SHOW

Grand finale of the show came when Gibson's Ladies' Wear, who supplied all the gowns for the show, showed the Gibson Girl herself, Miss Linda Gibson, in an empire-line wedding outfit with flared three-quarter-length sleeves and a train which swept back from the shoulders.

Miss Gibson and Gil Bunch provided the commentary for the show with background music provided by Fred Usher's orchestra and Reg Stone. Miss Terry Cain gave vocal stylings from the show, "My Fair Lady," the theme running throughout the entire affair.

Mrs. Elsie Lowthian arranged the event. Another showing was given Wednesday evening.

Consul Susanne Simonis arrives in Vancouver today to take up her new position as the German consul for British Columbia and the Yukon Territory. (W. Meyer-Pfeiffer Bonn.)

Former Journalist and Resistance Worker

CONSUL ARRIVES TODAY

A woman who took an active part in the German Resistance Movement during the reign of Adolf Hitler arrives in Vancouver today to represent her country as consul for British Columbia and the Yukon Territory.

For Consul Susanne Simonis it is the latest step in government service in a career which started when the newly established office for foreign affairs appointed her chief of personnel in 1950. Her duties at that time were to select women candidates to serve in the foreign service of the Federal Republic of Germany.

She was to later serve in the legal department of the German embassy in London, England.

In 1956, the new consul was appointed head of the German consulate in Scotland, serving first in Glasgow and later in Edinburgh.

From 1960 until recently, Consul Simonis worked as a first secretary in the cultural department of the German foreign office in Bonn.

Born and educated in Berlin, Consul Simonis began her varied career as a journalist and later became an editor of several women's weeklies. She also studied law and economics at the universities of Berlin and Cologne.

Travelling extensively, Consul Simonis spent seven years in the Far East. On her return to Germany in 1947, she joined the editorial staff of several periodicals, working as a freelance writer for different newspapers.

STYLES FROM PARIS

A feast of fashion shows began at Eaton's today when a capacity audience attended a showing, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital. Climaxing the show was a special collection of Paris originals, brought to Victoria for this week's shows. They included creations by Nina Ricci, Jacques Griffe, Givenchy, Yves St. Laurent, Jean Patou, Christian Dior, Balenciaga and Castilio.

Tickets are still available for shows to be held Friday and Saturday at 3 p.m. Tomorrow's show is under the sponsorship of the Woman's Auxiliary of Christ Church Cathedral.

The shows are being held in the dining room on the fourth floor. Commentator is Barbara Winkler, Eaton's fashion co-ordinator in Vancouver. The models are also from the mainland city.

As a preview, staff members were treated to a showing of the new styles on Monday evening.

PEAR CHUTNEY

Four cups prepared fruit (about 3 lbs. or 2 quarts fully ripe pears), ½ cup vinegar, ¼ cup lemon juice, 1 cup raisins, ¼ cup drained, silvered, preserved ginger, ½ cup chopped onion, 1 teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon ground ginger, 1 tablespoon salt, ¾ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar, ½ cups granulated sugar, 1 box powdered fruit pectin.

First, prepare the fruit. Peel and core about 3 pounds fully ripe pears. Cut up in small pieces. Measure 4 cups into a very large saucepan. Add vinegar, lemon juice, raisins, silvered ginger, onion, allspice, cinnamon, cloves, ginger, and salt to fruit in saucepan.

Then make the chutney. Measure sugars and set aside. Add powdered fruit pectin to fruit in saucepan and mix well. Place over high heat and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once stir in sugars. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 5 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and skim off foam with metal spoon. Then stir and skim by turns for 10 minutes to cool slightly to prevent floating fruit. Ladle quickly into glasses. Cover chutney at once with ½ inch hot paraffin.

Makes about 10 medium glasses (five pounds chutney).

Janet Millar Married
In Quiet Ceremony

In a quiet service in Victoria recently, Janet T. Millar, 2802 Prior Street, became the bride of Frederick "Wally" Stewart, Alert Bay, B.C.

For the afternoon ceremony in the Parliament Buildings, the bride wore a pure silk beige suit, dark brown accessories and a corsage of mauve orchids. Her jewelry was a six-strand necklace of topaz, interlaced with gold filigree, gift of the groom.

Mrs. Donald Craig was the bride's only attendant. She wore a black suit, pink accessories and a corsage of carnations. Best man was Donald Craig.

Roses, sweet peas and gypsophylla decorated the rooms at the reception held in the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Almond, 2802 Prior Street. Mr. Almond sang "Because" during the reception.

Following a honeymoon motoring through the province, the newlyweds are making their home at Alert Bay.

DEAR ABBY...

HE'S Overdoing It!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I went on a two-week vacation trip. We didn't want to take our three kids because they are all under five and hard to handle, so we left them with my mother, who is a widow and has nothing to do anyway. We also have a dog, which we left in our back yard. It's fenced in and there is a dog house there in case the dog needs shelter. We asked my mother to run over every day to feed the dog and give it fresh water, then we locked the house up tight.

and she got into the house somehow, gathered all the dirty clothes, washed and ironed them and laid them on the bed. Now I say if ever my wife had a right to get mad at my mother, it was right then. Our dirty clothes were none of my mother's business. We only asked her to keep the kids and feed the dog. I was as mad at her as my wife. I wish you'd write something about nosy mothers who overdo the domestic bit. Thanks.

"NOSEY'S" SON
DEAR SON: A woman who would care for three hard-to-handle grandchildren under five years of age, and "run over" daily to feed a dog is, in my book, an angel! Next time HIRE someone to do what your mother did out of the kindness of her heart and you won't have to worry about her "overdoing the domestic bit." P.S. Your wife was probably ashamed of having gone off and left soiled clothes behind, and her shame turned to anger when she learned that her negligence was no secret to your mother.

DEAR ABBY: In 1958 I started going around with a well-to-do married man who told me he had nothing in common with his wife any more. He said he loved me and if I would wait he would be married someday. I was married at the time and had a seven-year-old son. I gave up my husband and son to be available whenever this man wanted to see me.

All this time he told me we had to be careful not to be seen together because if his wife ever found out she could take him for every dime he had. I would cook dinner for him in my apartment and we never went any place.

Suddenly he quit coming around. I just learned that he is NOT married and never was. Tell me, Abby, what protection does a working woman, who can't afford to hire private detectives, have against a snake like this?

BETRAYED

DEAR BETRAYED: None — and the next time you're tempted to "go around" with a married man, find out if he's married — and then forget it.

DEAR ABBY: A few girls in the office in which I work, including myself, would like your opinion of the following.

Do you think it is right for an employer to expect an employee to lie for him? When he does not wish to be disturbed, or talk to someone or see someone, he asks us to say that he is "out."

Is there anything we can do about this? Naturally, an employee must follow orders, but this doesn't seem right.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE

DEAR GUILTY: Don't "nibble" the boss's orders. He has his reasons for being "out" and they should be good enough for you.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "PROF": Don't marry her if she doesn't "turn you on." She may have a fine mind, but you have to marry the whole girl.

Confidential To "Bertie": Talk is not always cheap. You can be sued for slander.

Hate to write letters? Send one dollar to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., for Abby's booklet, "HOW TO WRITE LETTERS FOR ALL OCCASIONS."

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lowe of Cowichan Bay have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Roberta Mae, to Mr. Henry John Hill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hill, 2642 Shelbourne Street, Victoria. The ceremony will take place this coming Saturday at 7 p.m. in Oaklands Gospel Chapel. Mr. Huron Sheppard will officiate. (Campbell Studio.)

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Start Self-Improvement
By Looking in Mirror

For many years, many things come with a regular routine for good looks and health is also a wonderful bonus.

Lowman

The way to begin is to look at yourself in a mirror, preferably a three-way mirror. Do not be discouraged if you see that there is plenty of room for improvement because today there is an answer for almost every defect in beauty. Be honest with yourself and let what you see be challenging rather than depressing.

What about your hair? What about your complexion? What about your figure? What about your posture? Start with these and tackle other problems later on. Make a list of the defects which you would like to banish or improve. Then get busy! This can be a gay and rewarding project.

Later, when the children are grown and have left home, it is such a waste when the woman does not find her new leisure a blessing instead of a burden. Today more and more women are making those years good years, when they find that they have time for themselves. Then a woman can enroll in a university course if she wishes. She can enter into civic and philanthropic activities she had no time for before. Perhaps she can travel a bit or visit relatives or take up a hobby or just invest more time in self-improvement at home.

The best way to start self-improvement at home is to begin with physical improvement. An increase in personal attractiveness gives a woman a tremendous boost and has lifted many a one out of the doldrums. The increase in energy which

Ivory Brocade Gown Fashioned by Bride

A gown of pure silk satin brocade in ivory tone, which she made herself, was worn by Miss Joan Turner for her marriage to Terrance Norman James recently.

The dress featured a scalloped neckline and lily point sleeves with a skirt that extended to floor-length from a bow in the back. A coronet of pearls and aurora borealis held her veil of silk illusion which misted to her fingertips and she carried a white Bible, gift of the groom. It was topped with a white gardenia, pink rosebuds and stephanotis.

First United Church was the setting for the evening ceremony uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Turner, 940 Lovat Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. James, 114 Burnett Road. Rev. M. Fowler officiated.

The bride was escorted up the aisle by her father.

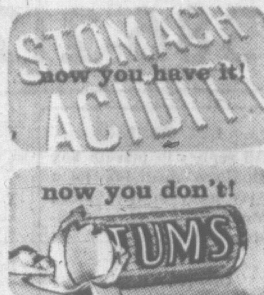

Blue dresses with overskirts of nylon sheer were worn by attendants, Mrs. D. Clark and the Misses Anita Marlow and Cheryl James. They completed the outfits with petal head-dresses and carried bouquets of pink carnations. A blue frock was worn by little flower girl, Kathy Baird, South Burnaby. Dewey Kennedy was best man and ushering guests to their pews were Delmer Clark and George Watson.

Soloist Bruce Page sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "I'll Walk

With God" for the ceremony. The newlyweds cut a wedding cake which was made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. W. Clarke at the reception in the Elk's Hall. A King, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. Dance music was played by A. Bishop and master of ceremonies was Ron Fletcher.

An off-white rayon laminated sheath-style dress, topped with a matching jacket, was worn by the new Mrs. James for a honeymoon trip on Vancouver Island. She wore a black whimsie, pink gloves and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple is making their home in Victoria.

A Scotiabank Home Improvement Loan is so easily arranged and the low-cost will please you, too. So remember, if you want to repair — renovate — or add to your home — and would like to borrow money — your nearest Scotiabank Manager is the man to see!

A NEW WAY to make false teeth fit snugly is good news for all corn-on-the-cob lovers! In fact for anyone who has a "plate" problem! And it's a problem that Pharmaco have solved with their new CUSHION GRIP — a soft, pliable plastic that holds false teeth as securely as a dentist's mold. This means you can eat anything you like without discomfort or embarrassment! One application of Cushion Grip lasts months, relieves any sore spots and won't harm plates even with nightly cleansing. For a trial sample, send 25¢, your name and address to Pharmaco, 3535 Metropolitan Blvd., Pointe Claire, P.Q. — and save 73¢ on the regular price!

GOOD NEWS! A friend of mine, just back from a cross-country trip via CN's Super Continental, had plenty of good news to tell about the "traveling" comfort of CN's services. A curious person, she "examined" the cosy coach lounges as well as the sophisticated living rooms and gave me a "delicious" report on the elegant dining car and pleasantly casual dinette facilities. But, she felt that nothing could beat the ride through the Rockies in CN's "Sceneramic" observation car. It is interesting to note that the standard of service is equally high on all of CN's "top of the line" trains, namely the Super Continental, the Panorama, the Ocean Limited and the Scotian.

ALL DRESSED UP — and lots of places to go — that's WINDSOR SALT in the handsome new dial shakers. There are two eye-catching designs (I chose the one wrapped in pewter foil but the copper foil package is equally attractive). Their contents sprinkle freely over food to bring out the best in your cooking — and salads — they practically sing when you add Canada's favourite salt! Look for Windsor Salt in the new 12 oz. shakers, now at your grocer's. And, for 100 tasty, tested recipes in a Windsor Salt Recipe Box, just send your name, address and $1.00 to Windsor Salt, Dept. Z, Box 6347, Montreal 2, P.Q.

ATTENTION GARDENERS AND PLANT GROWERS

- (1) The Golden Nematode is NOT a disease.
- (2) It is a microscopic, eel-shaped organism that feeds on the root juices of plants belonging to the botanical family Solanaceae (MAINLY POTATOES AND TOMATOES).
- (3) It will NOT reproduce or multiply on plants of any other botanical family.
- (4) It does NOT affect fruit trees, ornamental trees, shrubs, roses, bulbs, or general nursery and landscaping stock.
- (5) Home gardeners or landscapers wishing to purchase new stock need have NO FEAR of sources which have been found free of evidence of the Golden Nematode after inspection by government officials.

Severe restrictions have been made by the Dominion and Provincial governments to control the spread of the Golden Nematode and growers within the quarantine area on southern Vancouver Island are fully cooperating, at considerable financial sacrifice. Your patronage will help them.

Hey, Teen!

here's a grownup fashion bra designed especially for you!

Petal Teen
by Wonder-bra

You'll flip over new Petal Teen. At last, here's a teen bra designed for girls with a grownup eye for fashion. This young, pretty sister of the famous Petal Burst Stretch Strap has all of the glamorous details that teen bras don't usually have. (Stretch straps and lacy embroidery, for example.) But it flatters your teen-size figure as no grownup bra possibly can. The secret? Exclusive Wonder-Bra design. And stretch jersey cups lined with soft, cool Fiberfill to shape you naturally, make clothes fit better. You'll feel so poised in Petal Teen — and look so pretty!

Why is watching a Philips automatic TV like riding in a chauffeur-driven car?

(Because you just sit back, relax and enjoy it.)

Philips planned it that way. In fact, that's really the whole idea behind this new Canadian designed and built Automatic TV.

Here's how it works:

Instant picture & sound: The Philips Automatic comes on in two seconds—with famous Philips sound and picture clarity. (You get an exclusive 2-year guarantee on the direct-vision picture tube—automatically.)

Automatic contrast and brightness: Twin electric eyes measure changing light conditions in your living room. One adjusts the contrast. The other adjusts picture brightness to give you the ultimate in viewing, automatically.

Pre-set fine tuning: Changing channels is no problem with Philips. Pre-set fine tuning "remembers" the proper setting for each channel, automatically. Just set it and forget it.

As for limousine "looks," you have your choice of over 33 custom-designed wood cabinets and hand-rubbed finishes. Crafted by the artisans of Strathroy.

Have your family "chauffeur" take you to your Philips dealer—for a demonstration (automatically.)

Trust in Philips is world-wide.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

NEW YORK—Miss Midnight's Notebook: Senn Connery drew tremendous applause when he was introduced at the reopening of Basin Street East, and nobody could have accused him of being over-dressed for the occasion. He wore a sports jacket, blue shirt, no tie and no toupee, but enchanted the oglers. He was with Lena Horne, looking gorgeous, and her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lumet.

The people of show biz are still sad about the death of Dorothy Dandridge in Hollywood, just before she was to open at Basin Street.

Kate Reid, the splendid actress who appeared opposite Alec Guinness in "Dylan," has been snared for the part of the mother in the screen version of Tennessee Williams' play "This Property Is Condemned." . . . Reports are that Richard Burton has over $3 million tucked away in those cute little Swiss banks. Bravo . . . A teen-age actor has signed with a new manager, hoping he'll help him out of a bad financial fix . . . One Newport watering spot where Jacqueline Kennedy stopped for a bit of refreshment put her glass on the auction block as soon as she left.

Nancy Ames, the pretty blonde who became known as the TW3 girl, has become a hot property since "This Was the Week That Was" folded. Epic Records will give her the full-scale promotion treatment as a "pop" artist, and she's booked solidly through mid-1966 . . . The short skirt fad is getting fairly wild among the teen-age set. Some have taken to writing notes on their knees, and some of the reading matter is fairly blue.

Another fad that has parents of privileged youngsters in the Westchester and Hampton-type areas worried: the kids, boys and girls, are getting tattooed . . . Liberace is reported to be absolutely smashing as the coffin salesman in "The Loved One." Although he doesn't need any more money, he'll be up for a lot of films after this one is released.

The hapless caption-writer on a morning gazette probably found himself in a stew, Hungarian goulash style, when Magda Gabor Gallucci read the lines under a picture showing her with underprivileged children at the World's Fair. Mrs. Gallucci was described as "mother of the Gabor sisters." Well, sir, Magda is one of the sisters; Jolie is the mother. And even Jolie romps as if he were a sibling, not a mama.

Steve Boyd is doing such an effective job in "The Oscar" (supposed to be his first role as a heavy) that Joe Levine is about to sign him as the male lead in "The Minister and the Choir Singer," based on the famous Hall-Mills case of years ago.

Columbia Records has just released the album of Leonard Bernstein conducting Nielsen's Third Symphony. The maestro's original performance in Copenhagen, which was telecast via Eurovision, won ecstatic praise from Europe's top critics and established him as a musical matinee idol with classical fans abroad . . . The owners of Downtown, the about-to-open pop art discotheque, don't fool around with silly names. Their dance band will be called "The Band," featuring "The Guitarist," "The Drummer," "The Organist" and "The Singer" . . .

Eddie Fisher's latest blonde dish is Michelle Fankovitch. They've been hitting the West Coast night spots . . . Madame Nhu has written her memoirs in Rome . . . One of the sexiest of the foreign glamor girls gave everybody (except her studio press agent) a big laugh when she refused to do a two-page fashion layout for an important newspaper unless she could keep the $50,000 worth of furs in which her fabulous form was to be draped. The photographer got tired of her demands, said "Get lost" and cancelled the shooting, while the poor publicity chap headed for the 81st floor of the Empire State Building, or some similarly effective jumping-off place.

Jose Ferrer, at home on both sides of the footlights, is currently mad at the movies and says he may never direct another film again. "You slit your wrists," he says, "and pour your blood into directing a picture, and then some resident genius at the studio, who has never created anything, takes your work and hacks it into something you can't recognize. I won't go through that again."

Sounds interestingly gory, if only an expression of a fleeting emotion. I'd hate to offer Joe the right script and the right money and watch him slit his wrists as fast as you can say "Get me on that plane to Hollywood!"

Different World Facing Students

By JACK HUTTON

What's it like to be a student on a university campus in the United States these days?

The 1965 crop of students invading colleges and universities below the border does so with memories of race riots during the summer, student marches and an Asian war that has already claimed many of their friends.

If Canadian students are seared by a world in turmoil around them, they at least don't face the imminent possibility of being drafted into uniform.

And most of them haven't come face to face with the frightening reality that their generation must solve a problem of integration that has eluded their elders for 100 years.

To get one U.S. student's campus viewpoint, I talked this week to a 20-year-old honors student from Queen's College, Charlotte, N.C. Jane Cunningham is majoring in English and education.

Jane, a wholesome-looking brunette who stands five feet and 11 inches in low-heel shoes, was at the Canadian National Exhibition extolling the tourist virtues of her home state, South Carolina.

SunFun Queen

Last June she was chosen as queen of a week-long SunFun festival and pageant held at Myrtle Beach, S.C., and has been representing her state ever since at fairs and festivals.

How did she feel about the world outside her campus? Did she and her fellow students, I asked, share the concern of many Canadian students that this generation is being forced to face many issues left by an earlier generation?

"It's hard to compare generations," said Jane. "But I know that's true. I don't believe my parents felt as involved in the outside world during their schooling as we do. It's a different world."

Jane was quick to point out that her home state has avoided many of the problems of integration that have spawned violence and deep-rooted anger in other parts of the U.S. South.

And she believes that her generation is finding a new relationship between the two races—Negro and white—that didn't exist before.

Thousands of Canadian students either marched or staged sit-downs during the last school year to support the cause of integration below the border and will probably do so in coming months.

Understand?

Is it possible to understand in Canada what is happening in the U.S. South, I asked. Does an American student expect a Canadian student to understand all the factors of history that underlie the present situation?

"I don't think so," said Jane. She paused politely before going on, obviously searching for words that wouldn't offend her host country.

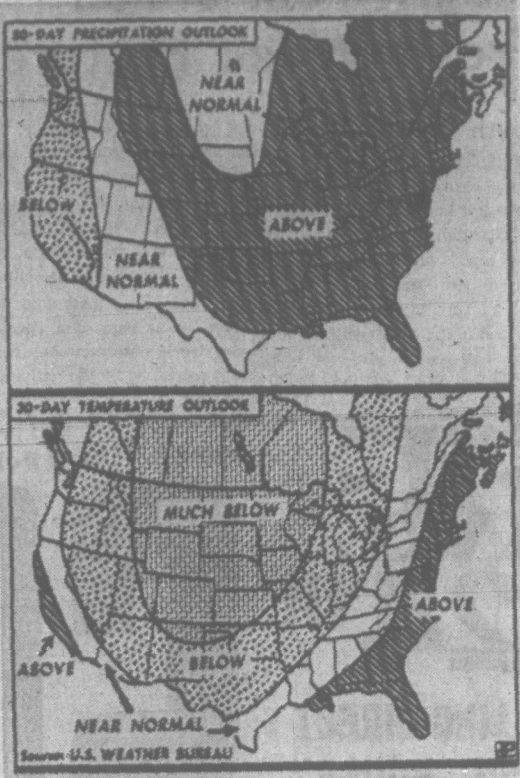

"Unless you live with a situation, it's not possible to understand it, is it?" she asked. "Both my parents have roots in the south, going back generations. I respect their feelings and views."

Would she or any of her friends ever consider marrying a Negro? Jane seemed shocked by this question. "No, I would not," she said. "But that does not mean I do not respect them."

"This is one of those things that is so hard to explain. My folks, as I said, are both southerners. I just couldn't."

I got the impression from Jane that she felt her generation is solving its problems at the correct pace. If outsiders would like to be in more of a hurry, they don't happen to live in the situation.

And there, as we head back into the 1965 classroom, are the views of a South Carolina student beauty queen.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Richard Hines, 7, Arroyo Grande, Calif., for his question:

If a Worm Is Cut Will Both Halves Grow?

If you break a leg, the bone will grow together again, but if you lose a leg, you cannot grow another one. The earthworm has no legs to break or lose. But his small body is very clever at mending other wounds. It can re-grow a lost tail, and it can even replace a lost head.

When you are older you may go to a biology class to study the plants and the animals. You will see tiny wonders enlarged under the microscope. You will learn other things by doing experiments. Perhaps you will study a live earthworm, right there in class. The teacher will be there to help you learn something amazing about little Mr. Pinky. This experiment calls for surgery, for the living earthworm must be cut into two halves.

Tail Grows a New Head

If a cat or a dog is cut in half the damage is fatal, but the gentle, little earthworm has a special gift for mending his body. If the slicing operation is done at the proper place, the two halves of his wormy body will heal. What's more, both halves will start to grow. The tail half grows a new head, and one earthworm becomes two earthworms.

A human hospital has a special surgery room. When a patient is operated upon, a trained team of doctors and nurses work together. So let's not operate on Mr. Pinky without proper help.

Liberal Score Byelection Wins

By BOB EXELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson shepherded his flock to victory in two provincial byelections Wednesday, giving him his best moment since he beat Charles Templeton on the sixth ballot for the Ontario party leadership a year ago.

The official Liberal opposition, with 24 seats after the September, 1963, general election, had been cut to 23 seats in a byelection defeat last year. It was further reduced to 21 by the deaths of Liberal members earlier in 1965 that forced the two byelections.

Faced with the need to regain these two seats or lose face, Mr. Thompson launched a vigorous personal campaign in both byelections. It paid off Wednesday as lawyer George Ben won handily in Toronto Bracondale while North Bay pharmacist Richard Smith captured Nipissing by a narrow margin.

Afterwards, the 44-year-old Liberal leader said in a telephone conversation with Prime Minister Pearson that the victories were "just the start of a tide that is going to sweep the Conservative government out of office."

The Conservatives have been in power for 22 years. The byelections put the standing in the 108-seat legislature at 77 Conservatives, 23 Liberals, 8 new Democrats, the same as it was when Mr. Thompson, Irish-born insurance dealer, won the party leadership Sept. 19, 1964.

About 64 per cent of the 16,791 eligible voters in Bracondale gave Mr. Ben an unofficial 1,545-vote plurality over NDP candidate John Farina. With all 99 polls heard from, these were the standings: Ben 4,940, Farina 3,486, Conservative Lawrence Odette 2,233.

In Nipissing, Mr. Smith went ahead immediately and stayed there throughout as returns came in from 193 polls, but at the end was awarded an unofficial plurality of 473 over the Conservative runner-up, Jack Gorman, making his second attempt at winning the riding for the government.

The standings were: Smith 10,734, Gorman 10,261, New Democrat Reg Finnmore 3,830.

Premier John Robarts said both Conservative candidates were good ones who did everything in their power to win. The Liberal victories left the standing in the legislature unchanged, he said, but "it's a contest and I'm a contestant and I don't particularly like to lose."

New Peru Cabinet

LIMA (Reuters)—A new Peruvian cabinet was sworn in Wednesday, two days after the old one walked out because of friction with congress. But press reports said it may not last long.

LITTLE CAT IS ONLY SURVIVOR

MATTMARK, Switzerland (UPI)—A little cat was the only survivor of the recent avalanche disaster that killed 88 people, Italian vice-consul Masini said today.

For more than two weeks, rescuers have been digging in the 100-foot-high layer of ice and rubble that covered a workers' camp when part of the Allalain Glacier broke off. But the only living thing they found was a small, young cat that was freed by a steam shovel—the machine's shovel missing it only by inches.

The cat was found last Thursday, but news of its liberation from the ice grave withheld until today in order not to arouse false hopes of finding human survivors, Masini said.

DIRECTOR AT NEW YWCA

'Mom' to 29 Girls Has Her Problems

By SUE PELLAND

Frances Sparks is secretary, hostess, counsellor, chambermaid, taxi driver and tourist information officer all in one.

She is also "mother" to 29 girls.

It's a 24-hour job.

But Mrs. Sparks wouldn't have it any other way.

New residence director at the YMCA building on Broughton Street, she finds her job "interesting and challenging."

The building was officially opened last weekend in an open-house at which the public was invited to tour the new ultra-modern "Y."

FRANCES SPARKS
24-hour job

"I came with the building," she said then.

New perhaps, but not inexperienced.

Mother of three and grandmother of nine, she knows all about this profession.

And she chalks it up to practical experience.

Any problems? What mother hasn't!

But she's had no "real problems" since she took over the job July 2.

Just the usual dripping nylons over the shower rack and hair spray on the washroom mirrors.

But not many mothers have "experienced" waiting up for 29 girls all out on separate week-end dates.

Normally the girls have a midnight curfew, but Friday and Saturday nights they can have late passes till 2 a.m.

And that means waiting up till every girl is in and the doors are locked for the night.

Any problems? What mother hasn't!

But she's had no "real problems" since she took over the job July 2.

Just the usual dripping nylons over the shower rack and hair spray on the washroom mirrors.

"But they're wonderful girls," she added.

"And I'm glad to be able to see that they feel free to come to me with their problems."

Her wards are out-of-town girls aged 17 to 22 who need a place to stay while training at local business schools, hospitals and hair-dressing schools.

They come from all parts of B.C.; most of them from Island areas.

They stay for the length of their training and until they are established in a job.

But even with the new residences Mrs. Sparks doesn't have room for all the girls who make applications.

Much of her time is spent finding accommodation at private homes for university girls and elderly people with no place to stay.

It's been a hectic summer getting started she said, but it's been interesting.

STUDENTS TO MOUNT CAMPAIGN

(See story page 12)

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson was informed today that the Canadian Union of Students will mount an organized campaign to get university student names on the electoral lists for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Patrick Kenniff of Montreal and Richard Good of Winnipeg, president and vice-president, respectively of the 135,000 member Canadian Union of Students, informed Mr. Pearson of the drive at a 30-minute meeting in Mr. Pearson's office.

They estimated that between 20,000 and 30,000 university students living in university residences may be affected by Elections Act provisions.

OIL STRIKE

Vancouver Waterfront Sealed Off

VANCOUVER (CP)—Oil workers sealed off a large section of the Vancouver waterfront with pickets today as part of their strike against the British-American Oil Co. Ltd.

Railway and port workers refused to cross the lines. Ferry, barge and railway crews already at work, or able to reach work without crossing the lines, stayed on the job.

Continued picketing would be certain to paralyze the flow of goods by truck and rail.

An official of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCA) said the action was taken because the CPR did not allow picketing Tuesday of a BA distribution plant in Vancouver's south-central Coal Harbor area. The BA plant is located on CPR property leased from the railway.

He said today's pickets would stay around the clock until the union is permitted to return to the BA site or until court injunctions force them away.

RESPECT LINES

Refusing to cross the four picketed entrances were members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CLC), the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC), the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) and other railway unions.

The strike, mainly over job security, began in the west Tuesday. Also out are men in Saskatoon and at the BA refinery in Clarkson, Ont., where the union claims a lockout occurred six hours prior to their strike deadline.

Union officials here charged Wednesday that the company is hiring strike-breaking drivers in Alberta and secretly repainting 15 BA trucks to remove identification so that they can be used to market BA products in B.C.

Union members at all other B.C. oil company plants have agreed to refuse to load any oil destined for BA outlets.

Wage differences also are an important factor in the dispute. The union has turned down this week's BA offer of 35 cents an hour over 30 months, holding out for 55 cents over two years. Base rate is $2.75 an hour.

About 20 truck drivers and warehousemen are affected by the strike in Victoria.

Conference Ducks Issue Of Viet Nam

OTTAWA (CP)—The 54th inter-parliamentary conference, unable to find any common ground between East and West, decided today against formally declaring itself on the war in Viet Nam.

In a move which surprised some conference sources, the meeting of legislators from 61 nations turned aside a mildly worded draft resolution submitted by France, apparently in the fear it would open the door for a more heated cold war exchange on the issue.

Sharp Spending Brake Urged in U.K. Report

By HAROLD MORRISON

WIRE BRIEFS

Boeing Picketed

SEATTLE (AP)—Work slowed on some vital U.S. space and defence programs today as picket lines were established at Boeing Company installations across the country.

Frontier Closed

Delta Hit By B-52s

Talks Paralyzed

GENEVA (UPI)—Kennedy Round tariff negotiations resumed today with the Common Market paralyzed because of the French boycott of the community. Other participants, led by the United States, were scheduled to introduce offers of reducing tariffs on farm products during the day.

Tracy Critically Ill

Air Crash Kills 27

SAIGON (UPI)—A commercial South Vietnamese DC-3 airliner crashed shortly after take-off from Quang Ngai airport 330 miles northeast of Saigon today, killing all 27 persons aboard including at least one American.

LONDON (CP)—A sharp brake on government spending abroad coupled with a freeze on the size of the national defence budget highlight the Labor administration's five-year national plan unveiled by Economic Minister George Brown today.

Economic aid to poorer countries is to be slowed down.

Cautioning Britons that they must restrain their demands for the good things in life for the next year or two, Brown said the first thing the country must do is realize it is deeply in debt to the rest of the world and that it must agree to "big changes" to be able to pay its way by 1970.

By that time, national production must increase by 25 per cent over 1964 achievements, giving Britain an additional $24,000,000,000 in national wealth. This would enable payment of foreign debt and raise living standards.

All of the 25-per-cent increase will be needed, Brown said, "if pay rises are not to be largely cancelled out by higher prices, if we are to take proper care of the old and the sick and

N.Y. Times Struck On Automation Issue

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Newspaper Guild, demanding job protection against automation and mergers here, went on strike against the morning New York Times today.

Early editions of evening newspapers came out as scheduled, however, as publishers withheld immediate action on their threat to close six other metropolitan dailies.

Negotiators went back into conference after a short recess from an all-night session. In calling the late-morning meeting, Theodore W. Kheel, special mediator, said:

"Within the next day a few hours after we resume negotiations... we will reach an agreement. Both sides have a constructive attitude. The area of difference is now better understood."

211,000 LOOKING FOR WORK

Unemployment Dips to 8-Year Low

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment dipped to 211,000 at mid-August and fell below the three-per-cent mark for the first time in eight years, the bureau of statistics and the labor department said today in a joint report.

The unemployment figure, down 33,000 from July and 35,000 below August of last year, represented 2.8 per cent of the bumper labor force of 7,490,000 persons.

It was the lowest percentage of unemployment since mid-summer of 1957. The rate for August, 1964, was 3.4 per cent and a year earlier it stood at 3.3.

The report said the number of people at work increased by 28,000 between July and August, an unusually large advance for this period of the year.

At the same time, 39,000 teen-agers withdrew from the labor force.

After adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the unemployment rate was four per cent, compared to 4.3 per cent in July, 4.5 in June and 4.9 in August of 1964.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

	Aug. July Aug.	1965	1965	1964
Labor force	7,490	7,495	7,217
Employed	7,279	7,251	6,971
Unemployed	211	244	246

These estimates are based on a survey of 35,000 homes taken during the week ended Aug. 21. The bureau-labor report said employment was substantially above last year's August level in all regions. British Columbia showed a gain of 6.2 per cent. Nationally, non-farm jobs showed a jump of 295,000 or 4.7 per cent in the year while the labor force grew by 273,000 or 3.8 per cent.

Jobless rates dropped significantly in every region. The Prairies, where most of the month's large gain in farm employment occurred, had an August unemployment rate of 1.4 per cent, compared to 1.9 in the two previous months.

The Atlantic and Quebec regions, however, continued to show rates above four per cent. In the Atlantic 4.2 per cent of the labor force was out of work compared to 4.6 in July and 4.5 in June. Quebec's rate was 4.1 per cent, down from 4.7 and five in the earlier months.

In Ontario, unemployment affected 2.1 per cent of the available workers, dropping from 2.4 in July and 2.6 in June. British Columbia reported 3.4 per cent out of work, down from 3.7 in July and 3.9 in June.

Of the 211,000 unemployed, 65,000 were in the 14-19 age group. Although this was 27,000 below the July level of teen-aged unemployment, most of the drop was caused by jobless youngsters leaving the labor market.

The report said 155,000 of those out of work had been job-hunting for three months or less. The "hard core" of unemployment, those jobless for seven months or more, dropped to 31,000. This was 10,000 below the year-earlier figure.

'Summit' Meet Urged by Thant

BEER UNION PREDICTS LONG, COLD STRIKE

VANCOUVER (CP)—The brewery workers' union said today that it is getting set for a long, cold strike against five lower mainland breweries.

Union spokesman Ed Sims told a press conference the union has rented heated, winterized trailers for its pickets.

He said the union has heard nothing from the companies about possible negotiations to end the strike, now well into its fourth week.

Pat O'Neal, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, said the federation has promised "substantial" financial support for the strikers.

SINGAPORE THREAT:

'Offer Base To Russia'

SINGAPORE (AP)—Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew threatened today to offer Russia a Singapore military base if the United States takes over the defence of Malaysia.

Lee, in another bitter anti-American outburst, declared:

"If the Americans step into the shoes of the British, this place is lost."

He declared he could get the Russians into this newly independent island state "in a minute."

"I could make sure that the U.S. 7th Fleet could not use the Singapore Straits," he added.

The strategic Singapore Straits are the gateway from the Pacific to the Indian Ocean.

Lee made these remarks to reporters during an interview at his official residence.

Lee said he believes Malaysia's leaders are convinced that if the British withdrew from their bases here "the Americans would come in to protect them."

Lee said he is also convinced powerful Malay extremist politicians would try to use American troops to support Malay communal interests against the local ethnic Chinese.

Lee said this is why Singapore now is rejecting any suggestion that the United States might eventually have to assume British defence commitments in Southeast Asia.

He did not say who made the suggestion.

There has been no public offer by the United States to take over the defence of Malaysia from Britain.

PERMANENT manned satellite will be placed around the earth before Russia lands a man on the moon, Soviet cosmonaut Alexei Leonov told a special plenary session of the International Astronautical Congress in Athens today.

'RUSSIA ALSO ON MOON BY 1970'

MUNICH (Reuters)—Soviet cosmonaut Vladimir Komarov said here today the Soviet Union plans to land a man on the moon in 1970.

Answering questions at a press conference at the international transport exhibition in this West German city, Komarov said the United States aim is a landing in 1970. "We, too, have a program for this time."

Komarov was in charge of the first spacewalk with a three-man crew.

U.S. Space Twins Cheered By Greeks

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—U.S. spacemen Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad Jr., arrived today to the cheers of an admiring multitude in this land where the idea of astronautics was born. Tonight they will have a chance to meet Soviet Cosmonauts Pavel Belyayev and Alexei Leonov.

The U.S. space record holders landed at Athens airport with their wives and children at the start of a six-nation goodwill tour.

Makes New Bid To Gain Peace

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI—Indian Prime Minister Shastri said today that UN Secretary-General U Thant had written a fresh appeal to him and Pakistan President Mohammad Ayub Khan to negotiate a peace in their countries' undeclared war.

Thant told reporters in London, en route back to UN headquarters, that his peace mission had not failed.

Asked for the reason for his hopes, he told reporters at London airport: "You will discover this tomorrow when you see my report to the Security Council."

Thant spoke to the reporters before flying to New York to report to the council on his week-long mediation efforts in the India-Pakistan war.

He told reporters it was possible he might make a second peace trip. "I do not rule out this possibility."

Before leaving New Delhi Wednesday, Thant made the new appeal to both Shastri and Ayub to meet and explore ways of ending the war.

In a letter relayed to both leaders Thant offered his own services to help them stop the fighting and said "world leaders are also willing to be available for any conciliatory assistance."

Thant's letter urged a summit conference between Indian and Pakistani leaders and said direct negotiation between the countries was the best way to achieve an "honorable and equitable settlement."

Will Reply As Soon As Possible

Shastri presented Parliament today with the correspondence that passed between him and Thant and said he will reply as soon as possible.

Thant's alternative suggestion for a bilateral meeting followed the apparent failure of his efforts to effect a ceasefire.

Thant said the conditions and qualifications that Shastri and Ayub had attached to his ceasefire proposal were beyond his authority to give.

Pakistan is putting a three-point condition for acceptance of a ceasefire. These are:

● Withdrawal of both India and Pakistan from Kashmir.

● An Afro-Asian UN force to police the state.

● A plebiscite within three months to decide the future affiliation of Kashmir, but Ayub has indicated the question is negotiable.

Commenting on these conditions, Shastri told Parliament: India was not putting any "conditions"—but was willing to order an immediate ceasefire, Shastri said.

But there were some "qualifications" to which Shastri attached great importance. He said these qualifications would not hinder an immediate cessation of hostilities.

Pakistan 'Playing Politics'

India said today it will listen to peace appeals from President Johnson and accused Pakistan of playing politics in asking Washington to end the war on the sub-continent.

"We have already made a positive response to appeals by Johnson and others," a government spokesman said. "But Pakistan now is just engaged in political manoeuvring."

Shastri told Parliament today that Ayub is only trying to "beguile the world" with his talk of peace.

"The evidence is that Pakistan is intending to continue the fight," Shastri said.

He called on the Indian nation to "cheerfully undergo the hardships" necessary to stop what he called Pakistan's "naked aggression."

UN Secretary-General U Thant's peace mission failed "through no fault of our own," Shastri said, blaming Pakistan's insistence on a conditional ceasefire.

Indians Cross 'Moat' Near City of Lahore

By UPI

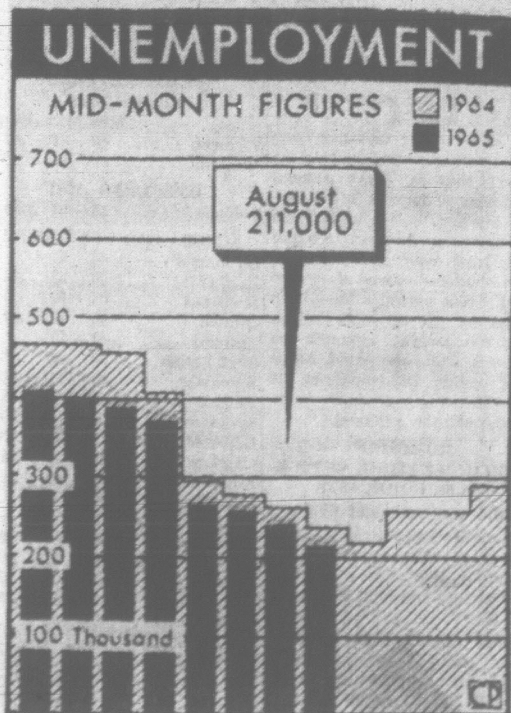

Indian troops today stormed across the Ichogil Canal defending the West Pakistan city of Lahore and were only six miles from the city itself, Indian defence ministry sources announced in New Delhi.

An Indian spokesman said Pakistani troops Wednesday blew a bridge across the canal on the road leading from the border town of Wagah to the city—Pakistan's second largest—16 miles inside the borders of Pakistan.

The canal is described as 100 feet wide and 10 feet deep. It was constructed by Pakistan in 1954, to ensure the defence of Lahore in event of any possible advance into Pakistan from Wagah.

A midday bulletin by the Indian defence ministry said Indian troops were in "complete control" of the area north of Punch in Kashmir and had captured large quantities of ammunition. It also reported Indian planes inflicted heavy damage on Pakistan's Peshawar and Sargodha airfields during the night.

CAPT. HARRIS HONORED

He Arrived Here During 1888 Trip

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

On Saint Valentine's Day 1888, the sealing schooner Sapphire limped into Victoria from Halifax around Cape Horn.

Soon after, 20-year-old Capt. Charles I. Harris had his first glimpse of the port where he was to spend the rest of his adventurous life.

Still dapper and alert today, Capt. Harris will celebrate his 98th birthday here on Sept. 28.

Wednesday night he was honored on the 75th anniversary of his initiation as a worshipful brother of Vancouver Lodge No. 2 A.F. and A.M.

Present were the grand junior warden, rt. worshipful brother James Hogg; the district deputy grand master; the worshipful master, officers and members of St. John's Lodge No. 21, Ladysmith, and representatives from many mainland lodges.

Two of his sons—Jack of Victoria and Alfred of Seattle—who have a total of 75 years' membership in Freemasonry between them, joined in the tribute.

SILVER TRAY

The official historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge gave an address on the life of Capt. Harris and presented him with an inscribed silver tray.

Capt. Harris lived through one of Victoria's most exciting eras, when sealing schooners anchored all winter in the upper Inner Harbor and went to sea in spring; when the waterfront was picturesque with the type of skipper Jack London made famous in his book, Sea Wolf.

He was born Sept. 28, 1867, at the village of Gabarus Bay on the rough Atlantic coast of Cape Breton Island, N.S.

His first opportunity for adventure came in June, 1887, when he signed on as second mate aboard the schooner Sapphire bound for the Pacific Northwest. The master and owner was his future father-in-law, Capt. John Graham Cox.

The Sapphire had a memorable voyage of 255 days from Halifax to Vancouver. She came around Cape Horn with cracked and broken spars and most of her provisions gone and put into San Diego.

But the port could not supply the repairs she needed and the schooner limped up to Vancouver—a voyage of 55 weary days.

She crossed to Victoria and Capt. Harris landed at the wharf

SALVAGE WORK

He engaged in salvage work on the coast seas and became master of the Salvor, owned by the B.C. Marine Railway Company.

He had an exciting career in the colorful sealing industry on this coast until it was closed by international agreement, and two of his schooners, the Maybelle and the Mary Taylor.

Subsequently he won fame as a coastal pilot and smoked as many as 20 black cigars a day given him by grateful ship-owners.

In fair weather and foul, he went out to Race Rocks, boarded a President liner inbound from the Orient and brought her up to the ocean docks in Victoria.

Two weeks later he would take the liner back to the Race for her long haul across the Pacific to Yokohama.

STORMY COAST

Capt. Harris was raised on the stormy Atlantic coast and when he played hooky from school it was to the seashore that he went.

By the time he reached his late teens, he had earned a temporary coasting master's ticket for Nova Scotia and served on two large schooners, the Eastern Tripper and the James Ryan.

Three years after he won his master's certificate in Victoria, Capt. Harris married Equita Cox, daughter of Capt. Graham Cox, owner of the schooners Sapphire, E. B. Marvin and the Carlotta Cox.

They had four sons, Graham, Alfred, Jack and Harry, and one daughter, Margaret, all still living.

In his tribute to Capt. Harris, the historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge said:

"We pay tribute tonight to our able, courageous, distinguished and well-loved dean of past masters of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge."

Free admission to Bastion Theatre group's performances of Come Blow Your Horn will be available to all members of Victoria Aged Pensioners, No. 3, on the night of Sept. 23, it was announced today.

NEW L.A. RIOTS POSSIBLE, WARNS VISITING MINISTER

By TERRY IZZARD

The Los Angeles riots will break out again unless the city takes swift action, a Los Angeles minister said here today.

Rev. Ralph Bell was in Watts district when the bitter fighting broke out.

Over coffee in his hotel room today, the 31-year-old Negro, a preacher with the Leighton Ford Crusade, spoke at length of his own impressions of the explosive situation.

As chaplain of Los Angeles county jail he chatted with many of the men who took part in pillaging and burning.

Said the amiable father of two: "They were a mixed crowd."

"Some were remorseful for what they had done."

"Others were bitter about the way they had been handled."

"Everyone claimed innocence."

Asked about police actions, the roving preacher said: "There's no doubt police brutality was one reason for the riot."

"Police tend to treat Negroes in that area more brutally than necessary."

But he does not believe it was the main reason.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Economic depression, poor living conditions and unemployment are all part of the picture.

"Look at it like this," he said.

"What has the Civil Rights Act done for these Negroes?"

"They can go into any restaurant—but they can't afford to eat in restaurants."

"They can get a job—except their education isn't sufficient to hold down a job."

"On the face of it they're better off."

"In actual fact they've gained nothing."

He believes it is now up to the city.

Liquor in McPherson Possible By Way of Restaurant Licence

McPherson Theatre goes

may yet have their drinks, despite council's no-liquor decision when plans for a bar in the foyer blew up recently.

Whoever gets the theatre restaurant concession from city council is expected to have a lounge liquor licence. It would provide for a small bar to serve patrons waiting for dining space.

City manager Dennis Young today confirmed that prospective operators assumed the theatre restaurant would be considered like any other privately-owned eating place, eligible for a liquor licence.

City council is providing the building and equipment and plans to lease the restaurant as part of the theatre and Centennial square operations.

The council square committee was told by Victoria members of the Canadian Restaurant Association Monday that any prospective operator "would naturally assume he could apply for a liquor serving licence."

Under municipal law public bodies are not allowed to enter into lease agreements with private individuals for more than five years.

It is generally felt by prospective operators that this is too short a period of time for them to write off their capital investment, hence the installation of major equipment by the city.

William Webb, president of the local restaurant association, told committee members the city should have a greater degree of permanency assured by an operator.

Nick North operator of the Imperial Inn, said the city would discourage fly-by-night operators by requiring that the first 10 years of rent, about $12,000, be paid in advance and be subject to forfeiture for unsatisfactory performance.

The square committee agreed to incorporate the proposals of the restaurant group into a tentative contract and submit it to a local restaurant operator who is negotiating with the city for the operation of the Centennial square restaurant.

Topics of the Day

City jeweller Hugh Francis has recently been awarded the Diamond Certificate of the Gemological Institute of America after completion of a two-year correspondence course in jeweller's training.

Mr. Francis, of F. W. Francis Ltd. studied diamond technology, including how to evaluate the gems, and grade them for color, clarity and cutting.

He was also required to grade and appraise a number of diamonds, before receiving the certificate.

Queens Own Rifles Cadet Corps will start this season's training Friday at 7:30 p.m. at McCauley Point.

The corps is still open to recruits from boys 14 to 18 years of age.

The course includes basic army training as well as band training.

Anyone interested in joining can telephone the chief instructor Capt. Fred Fotheringham at 477-3221.

Section A: 1. (tie), George Morgan and Harry Brown, and Marianne Powell and Les Isaacson; 3. Roger Allen and George Marsden; 4. Elizabeth Warren and Jack Goldie; 5. Dave Hayward and Jack McLaren; 6. Lily Roseboom and Gladys Cropp.

Section B: 1. Gwen Graham and Marjorie Eaton; 2. Anne Dye and Jim Duprau; 3. Ida Druce and Laura Tingley; 4. Florence Curran and Eg Robertson; 5. Hilda Price and Walt Allen; 6. Joan Smith and Les Stewart.

Two military aircraft buzzed over the city this morning exciting park strollers.

A military spokesman explained the exercises as routine.

Their flight over the city lasted about an hour.

The Vincent Price collection of fine art has acquired more than 35 paintings from local artists. Price of the deal is estimated at $3,000.

Victoria artist Donald Harvey said Wednesday that "this makes the future of art in Victoria very promising."

Works selected by Vincent Price were created by Mr. Harvey, Richard Cicciomarra, Maxwell Bates, Herbert Sieber and Flemming Jorgensen.

Country and western balladeer Cam Deveau, 32, Montreal Street, says many Victorians want live music to drink by in beer parlors and cocktail lounges.

"This would not only give local musicians work, but it would also bring in tourist and booking agents who might be able to give us that big break," he said.

A former Victoria student, David Kerridge, has been appointed a senior residence fellow at Carleton University at Ottawa.

His duties will be to assist in advising students living on campus and working with the students' residence government.

Chamber Urges Parks Mining

By JIM HUME

The British Columbia Chamber of Commerce this morning asked the provincial government to lift mining restrictions on "Class B" parks in the province.

Presenting their annual brief to the government, chamber delegates said present legislation, which leaves the granting of mining rights to the jurisdiction of the minister of recreation and conservation, are too restrictive.

"To avoid loss in the risk capital which these and other similar properties can attract," the chamber of commerce urges the government to amend the act respecting parks so as to state in the act itself the specific rights to prospect, stake and mine in large class B parks," the brief stated.

At the last session of the legislature there was considerable discussion as to whether mining should be permitted in Tweedsmuir Park on Vancouver Island.

The submission today was outlined by the annual meeting of the chamber last May in Prince George.

A 35-page book of resolutions and policy statements containing all the resolutions was compiled.

RAISING AGE
In it the Chamber asks the government to work towards goals as varied as raising the school age to 17 years and the finding of employment for able-bodied recipients of welfare.

Under education the Chamber urged the government:

To establish a continuing committee on educational matters in the province; to continue its support of the community colleges; to expand technological schools; to ask the federal government to make travel, board and lodging expenses for students away from home an allowable income tax deduction and to work towards standardization of school curricula across Canada.

STRIKE VOTE
The Chamber also asked for an amendment of labor laws to make it compulsory to state the time of a strike or a lock-out on strike-vote ballot papers and that the date for such actions be not less than six days and not more than 21 days after the taking of the vote.

Another amendment would see the cabinet given the discretionary power to refer to arbitration any dispute which would in its opinion imperil the health or safety of the general public.

On the taxation front the Chamber asked the government to repeal the B.C. Logging Tax and to grant sales tax exemption on machinery and material used in the manufacturing process.

COMPLETE ROAD
Other recommendations made by the Chamber asked the cabinet to consider completion of the Alberni-Tofino road to highway standards and ensure that it was kept open at all times.

● To work toward an agreement with the federal government

Students Plan Rally

University of Victoria students on October 27 will join in on a national day of student demonstrations for free university education, it was announced today.

Uvic student council will establish a committee to consider an off-campus rally and distribution of pamphlets on that day.

The date was selected to come just prior to the November 8 federal election.

Uvic President Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor termed the action by student council as "an excellent idea."

He said: "Any method by which we can publicize this need for higher education without any financial barriers and encourage more high school students to seek it is to be commended. I congratulate these students."

The nation-wide protest has been organized by the Canadian Union of Students with headquarters in Montreal.

The students are asking for the removal of all financial and social barriers to university education with academic qualification being the only requirement for admission.

Uvic student president Paul Williamson said: "We must act now to create an education system that will benefit Canadian society."

Secretary Speaks
Norma Cuthbertson, secretary in Toronto with the Mission to Lepers, will address an open meeting of the local auxiliary in Central Baptist Church Friday at 2 p.m.

RUSH-RUSH BLAMED

Gourmet Wine Comments Make Stewards Pop Cork

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Victoria wine stewards popped their corks this morning.

They fizzled at comments from Paul Lamy, spokesman for the newly-formed Victoria Gourmet Club.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Lamy was quoted as saying that wine waiters in the city "just don't know how to serve wine."

Hotelmen today were nearly unanimous in defending the trade. One voice shared the blame for "lack of good taste in serving wine" equally between customers and wine stewards.

The general view was that the service in wine and food today reflects the high pressure supermarket-taste of the customers.

SPECIALTY HOUSES
A spokesman in defence of the local wine stewards was Clair Bowman who owns two specialty houses in the city with his brother.

Said Mr. Bowman "there are many highly qualified wine stewards in the city who are anxious to perform their art of wine serving for those who will take the time to enjoy it."

The hotelman said that most people who dine out want to sit, eat and go. They won't take the time to dine and enjoy a good bottle of wine. They just "gulp."

He said that it was rather ridiculous for anyone to believe a hotelman would hire "just anybody" to perform a specialized service "in the face of today's catering competition."

"It would take me at least three months to replace my man now," Mr. Bowman testified, "but I wouldn't hire a man who wouldn't present the same exacting qualifications and neither would any other intelligent hotelman."

Albert Mastboom, assistant maitre d' in a local hotel commented that "unfortunately there is a certain must in wine service which may not be provided by some wine waiters."

He said that proper training in the trade takes long years and few men bother with it, but "that's because of lack of demand."

FIRST LECTURER to the University of Victoria Extension Association will be Dr. Clyde R. Pope, assistant professor of sociology at Uvic. The meeting will be held at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of the Young Building on the Lansdowne Campus. Dr. Pope is a former research director with the Portland Welfare Council. His topic is juvenile delinquency, causes and treatment.

Long-Time City Resident Dies

A resident of Victoria for the past 73 years, Charles Cooper, 92, of 3123 Davin Street, died today in Aberdeen Private Hospital.

Born in England, Mr. Cooper came to Victoria at an early age. He was a tailor in the city for 60 years.

He was also a prominent bandsman and was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters for 73 years.

Survivors include the widow, Miriam, a daughter, Mrs. Doreen Jones, and a son, Reginald C., all of Victoria.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

councils will be asked to participate.

Reeve Donald Morton said it would be an "information" meeting.

A regional body could control many joint projects including recreation, water supply, health, and garbage disposal.

The joint city-municipal meeting also agreed the new North Cowichan sewer system would probably have the sewage processed on municipal land by mechanical plant.

The effluent could then be carried to the city lagoon by easements which would not cross Indian land.

The new municipal system is to serve the Gibbins Road-Mary Street area but a bylaw has yet to be put to ratepayers.

A joint committee consisting of Coun. George Whittaker, Ald. James Saunders and the respective clerks will investigate the difficult problem of sewage disposal from the new Cowichan district hospital.

City council has a commitment in this respect but the hospital is now under construction on municipal land.

CAPT. HARRIS HONORED

He Arrived Here During 1888 Trip

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

On Saint Valentine's Day 1888, the sealing schooner Sapphire limped into Victoria from Halifax around Cape Horn.

Soon after, 20-year-old Capt. Charles I. Harris had his first glimpse of the port where he was to spend the rest of his adventurous life.

Still dapper and alert today, Capt. Harris will celebrate his 98th birthday here on Sept. 28.

Wednesday night he was honored on the 75th anniversary of his initiation as a worshipful brother of Vancouver Lodge No. 2 A.F. and A.M.

Present were the grand junior warden, Rt. worshipful brother James Hogg; the district deputy grand master; the worshipful master, officers and members of St. John's Lodge No. 21, Ladysmith, and representatives from many mainland lodges.

Two of his sons—Jack of Victoria and Alfred of Seattle—who have a total of 75 years' membership in Freemasonry between them, joined in the tribute.

SILVER TRAY

The official historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge gave an address on the life of Capt. Harris and presented him with an inscribed silver tray.

Capt. Harris lived through one of Victoria's most exciting eras, when sealing schooners anchored all winter in the upper Inner Harbor and went to sea in spring; when the waterfront was picturesque with the type of skipper Jack London made famous in his book, Sea Wolf.

He was born Sept. 28, 1867, at the village of Gabarus Bay on the rough Atlantic coast of Cape Breton Island, N.S.

His first opportunity for adventure came in June, 1887, when he signed on as second mate aboard the schooner Sapphire bound for the Pacific Northwest. The master and owner was his future father-in-law, Capt. John Graham Cox.

The Sapphire had a memorable voyage of 255 days from Halifax to Vancouver. She came around Cape Horn with cracked and broken spars and most of her provisions gone and put into San Diego.

But the port could not supply the repairs she needed and the schooner limped up to Vancouver—a voyage of 55 weary days. She crossed to Victoria and Capt. Harris landed at the wharf at the foot of Yates Street. He decided to settle in Vancouver, and the following year, after winning his master's certificate, he applied for membership in Vancouver and Quadra Lodge No. 2.

SALVAGE WORK

He engaged in salvage work on the coast seas and became master of the Salvor, owned by the B.C. Marine Railway Company.

He had an exciting career in the colorful sealing industry on this coast until it was closed by international agreement, and two of his schooners were the Maybelle and the Mary Taylor.

Subsequently he won fame as a coastal pilot and smoked as many as 20 black cigars a day given him by grateful shipowners.

In fair weather and foul, he went out to Race Rocks, boarded a President liner inbound from the Orient and brought her up to the ocean docks in Victoria.

Two weeks later he would take the liner back to the Race for her long haul across the Pacific to Yokohama.

STORMY COAST

Capt. Harris was raised on the stormy Atlantic coast and when he played hooky from school it was to the seashore that he went.

By the time he reached his late teens, he had earned a temporary coasting master's ticket for Nova Scotia and served on two large schooners, the Eastern-Tripper and the James Ryan.

Three years after he won his master's certificate in 1891, Capt. Harris married Equita Cox, daughter of Capt. Graham Cox, owner of the schooners Sapphire, E. B. Marvin and the Carliotta Cox.

They had four sons, Graham, Alfred, Jack and Harry, and one daughter, Margaret, all still living.

In his tribute to Capt. Harris, the historian of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge said:

"We pay tribute tonight to our able, courageous, distinguished and well-loved dean of past masters of Vancouver and Quadra Lodge."

Attacker Gets Nine Months

An Ontario man was sentenced today to nine months in jail for assaulting a woman while she was house-hunting in the Metcushin area.

"It was a vicious and outrageous assault, Magistrate William Ostler told Joseph R. Gray who pleaded guilty to the charge Wednesday.

Gray, who claimed he had no intention of harming the woman, asked the magistrate to be lenient, claiming he was in need of psychiatric treatment.

Gray followed the 45-year-old woman in a truck and got into conversation with her when she was loitering over some property. He suddenly grabbed the woman. When she screamed, he ran.

NEW L.A. RIOTS POSSIBLE, WARNS VISITING MINISTER

By TERRY IZZARD

The Los Angeles riots will break out again unless the city takes swift action, a Los Angeles minister said here today.

Rev. Ralph Bell was in Watts district when the bitter fighting broke out.

Over coffee in his hotel room today, the 31-year-old Negro, a preacher with the Leighton Ford Crusade, spoke at length of his own impressions of the explosive situation.

As chaplain of Los Angeles county jail he chatted with many of the men who took part in pillaging and burning.

Said the amiable father of two: "They were a mixed crowd."

"Some were remorseful for what they had done."

"Others were bitter about the way they had been handled."

"Everyone claimed innocence."

Asked about police actions, the roving preacher said: "There's no doubt police brutality was one reason for the riot."

"Police tend to treat Negroes in that area more brutally than is necessary."

But he does not believe it was the main reason.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Economic depression, poor living conditions and unemployment are all part of the picture.

"Look at it like this," he said.

"What has the Civil Rights Act done for these Negroes?"

"They can go into any restaurant—but they can't afford to eat in restaurants."

"They can get a job—except their education isn't sufficient to hold down a job."

"On the face of it they're better off."

"In actual fact they've gained nothing."

He believes it is now up to the city.

Liquor in McPherson Possible By Way of Restaurant Licence

McPherson Theatre goes may yet have their drinks, despite council's no-liquor decision when plans for a bar in the foyer blew up recently.

Whoever gets the theatre restaurant concession from city council is expected to have a lounge liquor licence. It would provide for a small bar to serve patrons waiting for dining space.

City manager Dennis Young today confirmed that prospective operators assumed the theatre restaurant would be considered like any other privately-owned eating place, eligible for a liquor licence.

City council is providing the building and equipment and plans to lease the restaurant as part of the theatre and Centennial square operations.

The council square committee was told by Victoria members of the Canadian Restaurant Association Monday that any prospective operator "would naturally assume he could apply for a liquor serving licence."

LIQUOR BOARD

About 10 per cent of the floor area would be reserved for the bar-waiting area recently introduced here and approved by the B.C. Liquor Control Board.

Previously, restaurants qualifying for a liquor licence had a service bar only, where waiters would pick up liquor orders.

Oak Bay Marina restaurant became the first in the area to have a small, separate lounge for the serving of drinks to bona fide patrons intending to have a meal.

Before McPherson Playhouse opened in February, there was a spirited controversy over whether it should apply for a bar licence for its spacious foyer area, to serve drinks to theatre patrons.

But the main problem, the city is facing at the present time is finding an operator for the restaurant.

Council has been trying unsuccessfully for two years to find a person willing to operate the restaurant on the city's terms.

Under municipal law public bodies are not allowed to enter into lease agreements with private individuals for more than five years.

It is generally felt by prospective operators that this is too short a period of time for them to write off their capital investment, hence the installation of major equipment by the city.

William Webb, president of the local restaurant association, told committee members the city should have a greater degree of permanency assured by an operator.

Nick North operator of the Imperial Inn, said the city would discourage fly-by-night operators by requiring that the first years of rent, about $12,000, be paid in advance and be subject to forfeiture for unsatisfactory performance.

The square committee agreed to incorporate the proposals of the restaurant group into a tentative contract and submit it to a local restaurant operator who is negotiating with the city for the operation of the Centennial square restaurant.

If the new contract is not acceptable the city would then re-advertise for operators.

Topics of the Day

City jeweller Hugh Francis Corp has recently been awarded the Diamond Institute of America Diamond certificate of the Gem after completion of a two-year correspondence course in jeweller's training.

Mr. Francis, of F. W. Francis Ltd. studied diamond technology, including how to evaluate the gems, and grade them for color, clarity and cutting.

He was also required to grade and appraise a number of diamonds, before receiving the certificate.

A 16-year-old youth was remanded in police court today until Sept. 23 for sentence on seven counts of theft and one of unlawful possession.

Jan Moller was transferred from juvenile court to face the charges. He pleaded guilty to all counts.

The wood store merchandise from Woodward's Store Ltd., T. Eaton Co., Marine Sales Ltd., Sandy's Auto Wreckers, Dickson and Dunn, tire dealers.

A stereo record player, grand door prize at the Strawberry Vale Fair, was won by Mrs. W. J. Kennedy, 180 Helmcken.

Other door prizes were won by Frank Austrowski, 3534 Tillamook Rd.; Doreen Jones, 3864 High St.; Mrs. W. McCaughey, 333 Gorge Rd.; James Allman, 775 Newbury; Brenda Lundglad, 1255 Staniel Lane.

The Vincent Price collection of fine art has acquired more than 35 paintings from local artists. Price of the deal is estimated at $3,000.

Victoria artist Donald Harvey said Wednesday that "this makes the future of art in Victoria very promising."

Works selected by Vincent Price were created by Mr. Harvey, Richard Cicciomarra, Maxwell Bates, Herbert Siebner and Flemming Jorgensen.

Country and western balladeer Cam Deveau, 32, Montreal Street, says many Victorians want live music to drink by in beer parlors and cocktail lounges.

"This would not only give local musicians work, but it would also bring in tourist and booking agents who might be able to give us that big break," he said.

A former Victoria student, David Kerridge, has been appointed a senior residence fellow at Carleton University in Ottawa.

His duties will be to assist in advising students living on campus and working with the students' residence government.

Queens Own Rifles Cadet Corps will start this season's training Friday at 7:30 p.m. at Macaulay Point.

The corps is still open to recruits from boys 14 to 18 years of age.

The course includes basic army training as well as band training.

Minister Power In Parks Scored

By JIM HUME

Thieves Enter Area Homes In Daylight

A rash of daylight break-ins and thefts Wednesday were reported by city police today.

Thieves forced the rear exit door of the Fox Theatre and stole $100 in small bills.

Robert Ross MacKinnon, 1461 Richmond, reported that his home was ransacked and $70 in cash stolen.

At 537 St. Charles, Thomas Price also reported thieves entered his home and stole some silver dollars and other small articles.

The home of Eric Day, 711 Richmond, was also ransacked and a bottle of rye stolen.

In the evening, G. Bate, 2010 Fernwood, frightened a thief who had broken into his store by forcing the lock of the door. Nothing was stolen.

Power of a B.C. minister to make rulings controlling mines in parks was attacked today by the British Columbia Chamber of Commerce.

Presenting their annual brief to the government, chamber delegates said present legislation, which leaves the granting of mining rights to the jurisdiction of the minister of recreation and conservation, is too restrictive.

"To avoid loss in the risk capital which these and other similar properties can attract, the chamber of commerce urges the government to amend the act respecting parks so as to state in the act itself the specific rights to prospect, stake and mine in large class B parks," the brief stated.

At the last session of the legislature there was considerable discussion as to whether mining should be permitted in Tweedsmuir Park on Vancouver Island.

The submission today was outlined by the annual meeting of the chamber last May in Prince George.

RAISING AGE

In the Chamber works the government to work towards goals as varied as raising the school age to 17 years and the finding of employment for able-bodied recipients of welfare.

Under education the Chamber urged the government:

To establish a continuing committee on educational matters in the province; to continue its support of the community colleges; to expand technological schools; to ask the federal government to make travel, board and lodging expenses for students away from home an allowable income tax deduction and to work towards standardization of school curricula across Canada.

STRIKE VOTE

The Chamber also asked for an amendment of labor laws to make it compulsory to state the time of a strike or a lock-out on strike-vote ballot papers and that the date for such actions be not less than six days and not more than 21 days after the taking of the vote.

Another amendment would see the cabinet given the discretionary power to refer to arbitration any dispute which would in its opinion imperil the health or safety of the general public.

On the taxation front the Chamber asked the government to repeal the B.C. Logging Tax and to grant sales tax exemption on machinery and material used in the manufacturing process.

Other recommendations made by the Chamber asked the cabinet to consider completion of the Alberni-Tofino road to highway standards and ensure that it was kept open at all times.

To work toward an agreement with the federal government

ment and the United States regarding the paving of the Alaska Highway.

● Provide ferry sailing between Horseshoe Bay and Departure Bay from 6 a.m. to 12 midnight.

● Reduce the speed limit on Highway 401 east of Abbotsford from 70 to 60 miles an hour.

● Abolish the five per cent tax on restaurant meals.

● Limit the size of motors and the speed of boats on small lakes.

● Provide protection for civilian police volunteers similar to that provided for citizens called out for forest-fire fighting duties.

● Permit liquor outlets to remain open on election days.

● Build a new jail in north-west B.C.

Students Plan Rally

University of Victoria students on October 27 will join in a national day of student demonstrations for free university education, it was announced today.

Uvic student council will establish a committee to consider an off-campus rally and distribution of pamphlets on that day.

The date was selected to come just prior to the November 3 federal election.

Uvic President Dr. Malcolm C. Taylor termed the action by student council as "an excellent idea."

He said: "Any method by which we can publicize this need for higher education without any financial barriers and encourage more high school students to seek it is to be commended. I congratulate these students."

The nation-wide protest has been organized by the Canadian Union of Students with headquarters in Montreal.

The students are asking for removal of all financial and social barriers to university education with academic qualification being the only requirement for admission.

Uvic student president Paul Williamson said: "We must act now to create an education system that will benefit Canadian society."

Norma Cuthbertson, secretary in Toronto with the Mission to Lepers, will address an open meeting of the local auxiliary in Central Baptist Church Friday at 2 p.m.

Gourmet Wine Comments Make Stewards Pop Cork

By JACQUES ROUSSEAU

Victoria wine stewards popped their corks this morning.

They fizzled at comments from Paul Lamy, spokesman for the newly-formed Victoria Gourmet Club.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Lamy was quoted as saying that wine waiters in the city "just don't know how to serve wine."

Hotelmen today were nearly unanimous in defending the trade. One voice shared the blame for "lack of good-taste in serving wine" equally between customers and wine stewards.

The general view was that the service in wine and food today reflects the high pressure supermarket-taste of the customers.

SPECIALTY HOUSES

A spokesman in defence of the local wine stewards was Clair Bowman who owns two specialty houses in the city with his brother.

Said Mr. Bowman "there are many highly qualified wine stewards in the city who are anxious to perform their art of wine serving for those who will take the time to enjoy it."

The hotelman said that most people who dine out want to sit, eat and go. They won't take the time to dine and enjoy a good bottle of wine. They just "gulp."

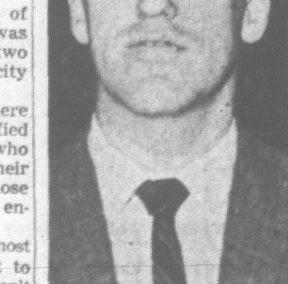

He said that it was rather ridiculous for anyone to believe a hotelman would hire "just anybody" to perform a "specialized service" in the face of today's catering competition.

"It would take me at least three months to replace my man now," Mr. Bowman testified, "but I wouldn't hire a man who wouldn't present the same exacting qualifications and neither would any other intelligent hotelman."

Albert Mastboom, assistant maitre d' in a local hotel commented that "unfortunately there is a certain must in wine service which may not be provided by some wine waiters."

He said that proper training in the trade takes long years and few men bother with it, but "that's because of lack of demand."

FIRST LECTURER to the University of Victoria Extension Association will be Dr. Clyde R. Pope, assistant professor of sociology at Uvic. The meeting will be held at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of the Young Building on the Lansdowne Campus. Dr. Pope is a former research director with the Portland Welfare Council. His topic is juvenile delinquency, causes and treatment.

Long-Time City Resident Dies

A resident of Victoria for the past 73 years, Charles Cooper, 92, of 3138 Davin Street, died today in Aberdeen Private Hospital.

Born in England, Mr. Cooper came to Victoria at an early age. He was a tailor in the city for 60 years.

He was also a prominent handsman and was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters for 73 years.

Survivors include the widow, Miriam, a daughter, Mrs. Doreen Jones, and a son, Reginald C., all of Victoria.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

NEW PEACE BID

'Summit' Parley
Urged by Thant

(Times News Services)

NEW DELHI — Indian Prime Minister Shastri said today that UN Secretary-General U Thant had written a fresh appeal to him and Pakistan President Mohammad Ayub Khan to negotiate a peace in their countries' undeclared war.

Thant told reporters in London, en route back to UN headquarters, that his peace mission had not failed.

Asked for the reason for his hopes, he told reporters at London airport: "You will discover this tomorrow when you see my report to the Security Council."

Thant spoke to the reporters before flying to New York to report to the council on his week-long mediation efforts in the India-Pakistan war. He told reporters it was possible he might make a second peace trip. "I do not rule out this possibility."

Will Reply As Soon As Possible

Shastri presented Parliament today with the correspondence that passed between him and Thant and said he will reply as soon as possible.

Thant's alternative suggestion for a bilateral meeting followed the apparent failure of his efforts to effect a ceasefire.

Thant said the conditions and qualifications that Shastri and Ayub had attached to his ceasefire proposal were beyond his authority to give.

Before leaving New Delhi Wednesday, Thant made the new appeal to both Shastri and Ayub to meet and explore ways of ending the war.

In a letter relayed to both leaders Thant offered his own services to help them stop the fighting and said "world leaders are also willing to be available for any conciliatory assistance."

Thant's letter urged a summit conference between Indian and Pakistani leaders and said direct negotiation between the countries was the best way to achieve an "honorable and equitable settlement."

Pakistan is putting a three-point condition for acceptance of a ceasefire. These are:

- Withdrawal of both India and Pakistan from Kashmir.

- An Afro-Asian UN force to police the state.

- A plebiscite within three months to decide the future affiliation of Kashmir, but Ayub has indicated the question is negotiable.

Commenting on these conditions.

Truck and Rail
Traffic Blocked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil workers sealed off a large section of the Vancouver waterfront with pickets against the British-American Oil Co. Ltd.

Railway and port workers refused to cross the lines. Ferry, barge and railway crews already at work, or able to reach work without crossing the lines, stayed on the job.

Continued picketing would be certain to paralyze the flow of goods by truck and rail.

An official of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCA) said the action was taken because the CPR did not allow picketing Tuesday of a BA distribution plant in Vancouver's south-central Coal Harbor area. The BA plant is located on CPR property leased from the railway.

He said today's pickets would stay around the clock until the union is permitted to return to the BA site or until court injunctions force them away.

RESPECT LINES

Refusing to cross the four picketed entrances were members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers (CBRTGW), the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU), the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (BRC), the Seafarers' International Union (SIU) and other railway unions.

The strike, mainly over job security, began in the west Tuesday. Also out are men in Saskatoon and at the BA refinery in Clarkson, Ont., where the union claims a lockout occurred six hours prior to their strike deadline.

Union officials here charged Wednesday that the company is hiring strike-breaking drivers in Alberta and secretly repainting 15 BA trucks to remove identification so that they can be used to market BA products in B.C.

Union members at all other B.C. oil company plants have agreed to refuse to load any oil destined for BA outlets.

Wage differences also are an important factor in the dispute. The union has turned down this week's BA offer of 35 cents an hour over 30 months, holding out for 55 cents over two years. Base rate is $2.75 an hour.

About 20 truck drivers and warehousemen are affected by the strike in Victoria.

CAMPAIGN

(See story page 12)

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson was informed today that the Canadian Union of Students will mount an organized campaign to get university student names on the electoral lists for the Nov. 8 federal election.

Patrick Kenniff of Montreal and Richard Good of Winnipeg, president and vice-president, respectively of the 135,000 member Canadian Union of Students, informed Mr. Pearson of the drive at a 50-minute meeting in Mr. Pearson's office.

They estimated that between 20,000 and 30,000 university students living in university residences may be affected by Elections Act provisions.

Witness Says

LAREDO, Texas (CP) — A former Montreal waiter told a federal jury today he brought a huge cargo of dope out of Mexico for Lucien Rivard in 1963, dropping off most of it near Detroit and delivering the remainder to Rivard at Montreal.

Roger Beauchemin, 33, said Rivard personally took the last nine bags of "white powder" — worth well in the millions of dollars at retail — but still owes him between $350 and $400 for the trip the dapper witness made with a girl friend in 1963.

Rivard and three other Montrealers have been on trial here all week on charges of conspiring to smuggle heroin into the United States. (See earlier story Page 3.)

RESIGNS STOCK POST

Hees Will Seek Commons Seat

MONTREAL (CP) — George Hees, former federal transport minister, said today he will run as a candidate in the Nov. 8 general election and has resigned his post as president of the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges.

Mr. Hees' announcement follows an appeal Wednesday by Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker for all party members to unite behind him in the campaign.

The former trade minister broke with Mr. Diefenbaker in 1963 over the nuclear arms issue and resigned from the cabinet.

He said he has no plans to run in any particular constituency but that he will be talking today with Conservative organizers in the Ontario riding of Northumberland. Northumberland officials had said they would want him as their candidate.

Spending Brake
Urged in U.K.

LONDON (CP) — A sharp brake on government spending abroad coupled with a freeze on the size of the national defence budget highlight the Labor administration's five-year national plan unveiled by Economic Minister George Brown today.

Economic aid to poorer countries is to be slowed down. Cautioning Britons that they must restrain their demands for the good things in life for the next year or two, Brown said the first thing the country must do is realize it is deeply in debt to the rest of the world and that it must agree to "big changes" to be able to pay its way by 1970.

By that time, national production must increase by 25 per cent over 1964 achievements, giving Britain an additional $24,000,000,000 in national wealth. This would enable payment of foreign debt and raise living standards.

All of the 25-per-cent increase will be needed, Brown said, "if pay rises are not to be largely cancelled out by higher prices, if we are to take proper care of the old and the sick and

Unemployment Drops

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment dipped to 211,000 at mid-August and fell below the three-per-cent mark for the first time in eight years, the bureau of statistics and the labor department said today in a joint report.

The unemployment figure, down 33,000 from July and 35,000 below August of last year, represented 2.8 per cent of the bumper labor force of 7,490,000 persons.

It was the lowest percentage of unemployment since mid-summer of 1957. The rate for August, 1964, was 3.4 per cent and a year earlier it was 3.9. In July of this year it stood at 3.3.

The report said the number of people at work increased by 28,000 between July and August, an unusually large advance for this period of the year.

At the same time, 39,000 teen-agers withdrew from the labor force.

After adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the unemployment rate was four per cent, compared to 4.3 per cent in July, 4.5 in June and 4.9 in August of 1964.

The job picture in brief (estimates in thousands):

	Aug.	July	Aug.
1965	1965	1964
Labor force	7,490	7,495	7,217
Employed	7,279	7,251	6,971
Unemployed	211	244	246

These estimates are based on a survey of 35,000 homes taken during the week ended Aug. 21.

The bureau-labor report said employment was substantially above last year's August level in all regions. British Columbia showed a gain of 6.2 per cent.

Nationally, non-farm jobs showed a jump of 295,000 or 4.7 per cent in the year while the labor force grew by 273,000 or 3.8 per cent.

Jobless rates dropped significantly in every region. The Prairies, where most of the month's large gain in farm employment occurred, had an August unemployment rate of 1.4 per cent, compared to 1.9 in the two previous months.

The Atlantic and Quebec regions, however, continued to show rates above four per cent. In the Atlantic 4.2 per cent of the labor force was out of work compared to 4.6 in July and 4.5 in June. Quebec's rate was 4.1 per cent, down from 4.7 and five in the earlier months.

In Ontario, unemployment affected 2.1 per cent of the available workers, dropping from 2.4 in July and 2.6 in June. British Columbia reported 3.4 per cent out of work, down from 3.7 in July and 3.9 in June.

Of the 211,000 unemployed, 65,000 were in the 14-19 age group. Although this was 27,000 below the July level, most of the drop was caused by jobless youngsters leaving the labor market.

The report said 155,000 of those out of work had been job-hunting for three months or less. The "hard core" of unemployment, those jobless for seven months or more, dropped to 31,000. This was 10,000 below the year-earlier figure.

THEY ARE PACKING THEM IN this week at the two women's residences at the University of Victoria. Sheila Thompson, 18, of Penticton, left, and Maureen Jewell, 18, of Cranbrook, both first year education students, take a moment's rest from unpacking their suitcases. They will be among 140 girls who will call the residences home for the next term.
